Sundsvall, a dynamic urban centre in northern Sweden, offers a unique blend of modern vibrancy and rich neo-Renaissance architectural charm. Encircled by lush forests and towering mountains, this city is a gateway to outdoor adventures. Its rejuvenated cityscape, highlighted by the striking stone architecture of Stenstaden, invites you to explore cultural richness, diverse cuisine and a thriving art scene. Sundsvall is a captivating destination for travellers seeking an authentic Swedish experience.

THE CITY

Visit Sundsvall

If there is a Swedish city that has risen from the ashes like a Phoenix and dazzled the rest of the world with its new splendour, it must be Sundsvall. After the major fire in 1888, the city was rebuilt with insurance money and contributions from the rich timber magnates. It was built entirely in stone and designed by the leading architects of the time, who took pride in outdoing each other. It would be simply impossible to build a similar city today. Back then, Sundsvall was Sweden's Klondike — a city to which thousands of people travelled to seek their fortune and a better life. Today, Sundsvall buzzes with life and activity more than ever, and the chances of finding happiness are not diminished, but quite the opposite.

Sweden's largest coastal delta is formed at the mouth of the river Indalsälven, where it flows into the Gulf of Bothnia. This unique natural environment is best explored on foot or by canoe. The Sundsvall-Timrå Airport, the county's largest airport, is located in the middle of the delta, a stone's throw from the magnificent Y:et sculpture created by the artist Bengt Lindström. Here is also a seaside 18-hole golf course. Timrå is also home to Merlo, the only castle in Norrland, and the beautiful Tynderö peninsula with its many roadside cafes and farm shops along Skeppshamnsleden. A ten-minute drive south brings you to Birsta shopping centre and Sundsvall's diverse offerings.

The geographical heart of Sweden is starting to develop into a musical centre. The rock bands Takida and Corroded both originate from Ånge. The beautiful valley of the river Ljungan, dotted with small villages and large manors from the days of the timber magnates, strikes a chord in people's hearts. The result is sweet music.

Gudmundstjärn Nature Reserve & Open-air Museum

Gudmundstjärn, located 30 km west of Sundsvall, is one of Sweden's last preserved self-sufficient settlements. Between 1779 and 1944 the fields here were farmed by five generations. No roads connected the homestead to the outside world. The 22 preserved buildings have been declared historical monuments, and the area is now a nature reserve.

Indalsleden — the Indal Route

National roads 86 and 87 between Sundsvall and Östersund, known as the Indalsleden, are said to be some of Sweden's most beautiful tourist routes. The entire stretch along the Indal River valley is an eldorado for independent outdoor activities. If you're interested in history, there are numerous reasons to stop and explore old rural culture, museums, nature information centres and ancient remains.

Selånger Pilgrim Center

The Selånger Pilgrim Centre serves as a platform to highlight the exciting local history. It's also as a starting point for cyclists and hikers on the St Olavsleden — a pilgrim's way between Selånger outside Sundsvall in Sweden and Nidaros Cathedral in Trondheim in Norway

The centre features a café offering coffee, tea, sandwiches, salads, and the world's most delicious "dragon" ice cream. Don't miss the opportunity to try the locally produced cheesecake from Gårdtjärn with jam from Blåtand in Stöde.

Nolby Högar Open-air Museum

Welcome to a meeting place many thousands of years old, which tells a part of the exciting history of Västernorrland. Take in the landscape and the views. Traces of previous generations are especially evident here: burial mounds, an early medieval church ruin, house foundations, roads, and a runestone bear witness to the lives lived here.

The exhibition at the Nolby Högar site narrates the area's long history. Here, you can learn about how land uplift has changed the landscape over time and how people have used this place for thousands of years.

Svartvik Industrial Heritage

Svartvik bears the memories from 200 years of northern Swedish industrial history, evolving from a loading dock to a shipyard, steam sawmill, and pulp factory. Today, Svartvik will be a point of interest with displays of its history, park like environment, playgrounds for the children, one of the oldest water towers in Sweden and a skittle alley, where you can try to play just like the patrons did during the peak of the logging industry. Visit the exhibition featuring a 7-meter-long model of Svartvik in the 1930s.

In the summer, a variety of activities are organised by the Svartvik Days Association. In the winter, image and storytelling evenings with historical themes are arranged.

Dine at the manor house, enjoy a coffee at Café Svartvik, or visit the antique shop.

Galtströms Bruk

Galtström is located at what once was Medelpad's first, largest and last ironworks, along the coast south of Sundsvall. A visit to Galtström is like a journey through time. In the wonderful environment you can feel the wing beat of history, ride a steam train, wander in nature, or take a dip in the sea from cliffs and sandy beaches.

The site includes a restaurant, a playground, fascinating ruins, and is very child-friendly. SCA, which owns and manages the ironworks, offers guided tours on Saturdays and Sundays throughout the summer.

Merlo Slott

The grand, fairy-tale castle-like main building in Timrå was built in 1883-1885 as a summer residence for the timber magnate Fredrik Bünsow, who was one of Sweden's most powerful timber barons at the time. The architects were Isak Gustaf Clason and Fritz Eckert. Clason is known for designing the Nordic Museum and Hallwyl Palace in Stockholm. The beautiful castle (or Villa Merlo, as it is actually called) is now a cultural heritage site and houses Svenska Cellulosa's central archive. In the summer, you can take a guided tour to see the many rooms and halls that still retain their former glory. Even the garden alone is well worth a visit.

Flataklocken — the Geographical Midpoint of Sweden

Approximately 60 kilometres west of Sundsvall, you'll find Flataklocken, which was designated as the Geographical Centre of Sweden's landmass through a centre-of-gravity calculation by KTH in Stockholm in 1947. This means that if you were to put Sweden on a needle, it would be in balance just over the mountain Flataklocken. It offers a vast 360-degree view of the beautiful landscape in Ljungandalen, and on clear days, one can see far towards the Sundsvall coast. At the summit, there are fire pits and a café open in the summer.

Alnö Island

Alnö, known as 'Norrländ's Hawaii', is a volcanic island just outside Sundsvall that formed approximately 570 million years ago. As a result, Alnö features unique rocks and minerals not found anywhere else in the world, including the eponymous Alnöite. Around the turn of the 20th century, Alnö was a true sawmill island with 19 sawmills operating simultaneously. Today's Alnö is a summer paradise with cosy bathing coves, fishing villages, restaurants and cafés.

City Café

In 1891, three years after the great Sundsvall fire, Mina Nordström started a café in the newly rebuilt Hirschska house. Mina owned the café through a century change and two world wars. In 1945, Konrad Dufenberg took over the business, and in 1967 a new era began with the name change to City Caféet. In 1997, Gunilla Sjöberg took over this venerable café, which is now the second oldest in Sweden.

Today's City Café is filled with tradition, personality, and charm. People from across the country visit to experience a piece of well-preserved history. Gunilla's homemade mustard is a must-try, and its recipe is a closely guarded secret.

Espresso House

The history of Espresso House goes back to 1996 when the first café opened in Lund by Charles and Elisabet Asker. What started as a small café inspired by both the Italian coffee culture and the American coffee tradition, is today the largest coffee shop chain in Scandinavia, with more than 400 coffee shops spread out between the four countries Sweden, Norway, Finland and Denmark.

At Espresso House, there are more than coffee; sandwiches, salads, pies, yoghurt and more, something for every occasion – breakfast, lunch, snack or on the go. All bread and pastries served is made at their own bakery in Malmö, Sweden.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Visit Sundsvall

Sundsvall has many pubs and clubs in a wide variety of styles, all with knowledgeable staff and excellent food. The city also has plenty of watering holes for those who love the nightlife and dancing until dawn. Later during the evening, many restaurants turn into lovely places where the lights turn down and the music turns up.

E Street

E Street is the meeting place for those who appreciate good food, friendly gatherings and musical entertainment, including karaoke. Here, you can have a beer at the bar, enjoy a three-course dinner, or simply drop in for a cup of coffee. The bar attracts a more adult crowd.

SHOPPING

Visit Sundsvall

Shopping is one of Sundsvall's strongest features. The range and variety are of big city standard and attract visitors from the whole of Norrland. Even from the south, many keen shoppers flock to the area.

Storgatan in the Stone Town

There are over 200 shops in the Stone Town. And although Storgatan (the main street) offers enough shopping for one or two days, don't miss the side streets. There, you'll find a number of shops that are worth a small detour.

In:Gallerian

Norrland's largest city mall, In:Gallerian, is situated in the heart of the Stone City and extends across three blocks. These blocks are interconnected by walkways, allowing you to easily move indoors between the buildings for as long as 249 meters on one of the floors.

In:Gallerian offers world-class shopping. Here, you'll find everything from clothing and shoes, groceries and technology, to health and beauty products. In addition to shopping, In:Gallerian also features restaurants and cafés. These are spread throughout the mall, creating pleasant 'pit stops' for you to enjoy a tasty meal or coffee in a lovely environment, parts of which date back to the late 19th century.

Bergafjärdens Camping

Thousands of years ago, before the land uplift, the great Ljungan river had a different outlet than it does today. It flowed into Bergafjärden, creating a delta that is now a shallow, child-friendly sandy beach with warm waters, making it an ideal spot for those eager to swim. This, combined with the camping site, offers a delightful and nature-close summer holiday for the whole family, with proximity to both the sea and the forest.

Besides cabins of various sizes, the area includes numerous caravan and tent pitches, a service house, a restaurant, a café, a small shop, and adventure mini-golf. The campsite is located about twenty minutes south of Sundsvall, easily accessible via the E4 motorway.
