“Ciudad del paraíso” – the paradise city. This is how the Nobel Prize winner for literature, Vicente Aleixandre, described Malaga. A city that vibrates with life and fascinates with its mixture of ancient history, folklore and modern culture. And of course, it is easy to imagine paradise in this harbour city with nearly 3.000 hours of sunshine a year and several kilometres of beach right in the centre.

THE CITY

© Martin F

In Malaga nearly everything is within walking distance in or around the “Centro Antiguo”. Wherever you look, you are reminded of the city’s rich heritage – founded in 900 B.C. by Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Visigoths and Arabs. Malaga’s most famous inhabitant, Pablo Picasso, was born at Plaza de la Merced in 1881. Picasso’s life and work is still present in most places and the citizens of Malaga are proud of their son. The opening of the Museo Picasso in 2003 was a hit and has made the city flourish culturally. Next to the museum, the visitor can find both the Roman theatre, an Arab castle and, not far away, is the bull fighting ring. CAC, with its international contemporary art, is located on the other side of the old town. The Plaza Episcopal is adjacent to the Cathedral and has occasional exhibitions, often of high quality. Teatro Cervantes offers a wide range of concerts, dance and musicals.

DO & SEE

© manuelfloresv

Malaga is in a good location for various day trips along the coast, up to the small mountain villages or to one of the larger Andalucian cities. It is approximately a two hours’ drive from Granada, Córdoba or Seville in a hired car or by bus. In Granada, you must not miss the fabulous Moorish palace Alhambra, the Gothic cathedral and the Arab quarters in the Albaicín.

In Córdoba, a walk to the old Jewish quarters and La Mezquita is recommended. In Seville, the capital of Andalucia, you should visit the Santa Cruz and Real Alcázar districts at the heart of the city. Along the entire Costa del Sol it is easy to take a bus or train to most cities such as Fuengirola, Torremolinos and Marbella. Here there are lovely beaches, nice bars and restaurants as well as good opportunities for shopping. Tips for families are Tivoli World in Benalmádena (www.tivolicostadelsol.com), Aqualand in Torremolinos (www.aqualand.es/torremolinos) and Selwo in Estepona (www.selwo.es).

In Puerto Banús you can view the gigantic luxury yachts, enjoy designer name shopping and mix with the rich and famous at the chic bars on the sea front. There are also yachts, discothèques, bars and restaurants in Puerto Marina in Benalmádena. Ronda is a picturesque town located on a precipitous limestone cliff. The road leading there from San Pedro de Alcántara on the coast is a dizzy mountain trip.

Alcazaba

Alcazaba and Gibralfaro are military forts dating from the period of Arab rule. There is a palace inside the walls with a beautiful garden and spectacular views.

The Roman theatre just beneath was built during the first century A.D. and has recently been restored and renovated after many years of neglect.

Address: Calle de la Alcazabilla 2

CAFES

© Frank Kovalchek

There are not many trendy, international-style cafés in Malaga but there are some genuine patisseries and cozy teashops in Arab-inspired surroundings. Not to forget "churrerías" – shops selling churros dipped in hot chocolate or café au lait.

Lepanto

Lepanto is a genuine patisserie serving coffee, and if you wish, cakes, assorted chocolates and ice cream. Pleasant, traditional indoor surroundings and large outdoor restaurant in the shopping street.

Address: Calle Marqués de Larios 7
Phone: +34 952 226 221

Casa Mira

Casa Mira is an institution in Málaga and has the best ice cream according to the Malagueños. Visit Casa Mira and see if you agree!

Address: C/ Compás de la Victoria, 1
Phone: +34 952 25 97 49

Casa Aranda

Eating churros is a must when visiting Malaga. Casa Aranda is genuinely "Malagueño" and you can watch how they prepare the fried bread which is later dipped in chocolate or coffee.

Address: Calle Herrera del Rey, 3
Phone: + 34 952 222 812
Internet: www.casa-aranda.net

El Jardín

El Jardín is not only an extremely cozy café but also a restaurant with traditional spanish food. The weekends bring performances such as poem reading, fiery tango and classical piano.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

© Andrew Crump

In the centre of Malaga it is not difficult to find a bar with music and people chatting – there are many in close proximity to each other. The inhabitants of Malaga do not go out before midnight, but then they party until dawn. In the centre, bars with smaller dance floors predominate, for example, Karma, 30 y Tantos, Skopas, Sala Wengué, O’Neills and Siempre Así. If you are looking for a proper discothèque, you should go to Puerto Marina in Benalmádena.

Bodega El Pimpi

You haven’t been to Malaga if you haven’t been to Pimpi, the most typical place in the city with photos of celebrities, hundred-year old posters and wine barrels on the walls. Here you can drink wine from the province and eat tapas in historical surroundings – in the 18th-century, the house was a nunnery. Once a month, there is live flamenco.

Address: Calle Granada 62
Phone: +34 952 228 990
Internet: www.bodegabarelpimpi.com

Discoteca Liceo

Liceo is an ideal place for dancing the night away. With two floors and four rooms playing different music there is something for everybody.

Address: Calle de las Beatas, 21
Phone: +34 625 557 012
Internet: www.liceoflamenco.com

El Pícaro de la Habana

If you are one of those people who wants to salsa and dance merengue, this is the place for you! Dance the night away!

SHOPPING

© Alfonso Pierantonio

Calle Larios and Calle Nueva, the street running parallel to it, are the main shopping streets in Malaga for shoes and clothes. Shoes can be found, for example, at Antonio Parriego and Nicolas on Calle Larios. You can also find the Spanish clothes shops Mango, Massimo Dutti, Bershka and Pull & Bear there. Zara is located on the side street Liborio García.

In the Centro Larios shopping centre, apart from clothes shops, there are cinemas and restaurants. Designer clothes can be found at El Corte Inglés Armani, Versace, Dolce Galbana at Pinsapo, Calle Larios. For those looking for a gift, a souvenir, or something good to eat, a visit to Mercado Central Atarazanas is recommended. Here you can buy meat, fish, fruit, vegetables, olives, nuts, spices, cheese and pork all at reasonable prices. Apart from this, the market is a delight for the eye.

At Ultramarinos Zoilo on Calle Granada, you can buy typical Málaga Dulce or Moscatel sweet wine, serrano pork, good cheeses and sausages, raisins from the province and sweets such as “mantecados,” a kind of cake that is mainly eaten at Christmas. Those wanting a slightly more exclusive souvenir, can buy a fan in one of the specialised shops on Calle Nueva.

© □ □ ! □ □ □

Where you are here with friends or on a family vacation you will find a place to live. Choose from staying close to the beach or close to the many clubs in town!

El Parador De Málaga Gibralfaro

Unbeatable views, on the Gibralfaro mountain just next to the old Arab castle by the same name. Four stars and own restaurant with typical Andalucian cuisine.
