Naples, with its million inhabitants, is the third biggest city in Italy. Its position is spectacular – with the celebrated view over the gulf of Naples and the extraordinary islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida. The city is overlooked by Vesuvius, a vast volcano which erupted violently in 79 BC covering the cities of Pompei and Ercolano. Today, these cities, now excavated, bear witness to the splendours of the Roman Empire. Vesuvio's last eruption was in 1944.

THE CITY

© Leandro Neumann Ciuffo

The historic city of Naples was founded about 3.000 years ago as Partenope, by Greek merchants. Later, the settlement took the name of Palepolis (the old city) and in 475 BC it became Neapolis, the new city. Under various phases of foreign rule, the city developed and grew and then became the capital of the most important of the pre-unification states – the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies. The rules of that Kingdom – the Bourbons – constructed a magnificent palace in nearby Caserta and filled the city with historic structures of all kind.

The historic centre of Naples – with its splendid palaces, and popular and lively working-class districts – is now under UNESCO protection as a world treasure. Naples also boasts an underground city, as well as its famous views from all parts of the city. Moreover, this hospitable city is marked by contrasts and popular traditions – such as the annual miracle whereby San Gennaro's 'blood' becomes liquid in front of the eyes of his followers. Two products have made Naples famous throughout the world – the pizza – which is only one part of a rich local cuisine, and music, as in the famous popular song, "O Sole Mio."

EATING

Neapolitans believe that their cuisine is among the best in the world. Are they right? Judge for yourself after trying REAL pizza, different kinds of pasta made with tomato sauce, meat sauce or fish or the typical cakes (babà and sfogliatella). And don't worry too much about your weight. Naples cuisine is made of "poor" ingredients, such as oil, pecorino cheese, tomato sauce and aromatic herbs.

SHOPPING

If you want to buy fashionable clothes, accessories or jewelry, you should go to via Calabritto, via G.Filangieri, via Chiaia and via Toledo. Here you can find many fashion shops such as Bulgari, Gucci and Louis Vuitton.

In the same area there are two stores notable for their local connection: one is Ernesto Esposito (via Santa Caterina a Chiaia 20) which showcases the sexed-up heels created by its namesake designer, a Neapolitan who also designs shoes for Fendi, Sonia Rykiel and Via Spiga and the other is Marinella (Riviera di Chiaia 287), which is a tiny shop with a huge reputation for its classic men's accessories and, especially, silk ties.

A huge flea market with good bargains is found close to the Poggioreale jail and runs from Thursday through Monday.

If you are looking for typical handmade products, the best place to go is the Quartieri Spagnoli: this area still has the highest number of old craftsmen's shops. The sophisticated, expensive Capodimonte porcelain, cameos, and gouaches are particularly famous. Naples is also tied to the traditions of leather goods, and gold and silver objects.

If you are interested in buying the famous nativity scene figurines made in terracotta, you visit via San Gregorio Armeno: where you can find all types of figurines, all made by hand.
