Most people associate Salzburg with Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and the movie "Sound of Music." The city is certainly as beautiful in real life as it is on the silver screen. Some of its features are straight out of a fairytale – rustic medieval buildings, Baroque gems and quaint little squares.

THE CITY

© Richard Taylor

Salzburg was originally known as Juvavum, a trading stop on one of the Roman Empire's most important routes. It declined during hard times after the Goths' attack on Rome, and as the western part of the empire declined, so did Salzburg. All that remained was a small village.

In 696 AD the city was revived. Bishop Rupert was so fond of the area's beauty that he re-named it Salzburg after the river Salzach, and made it an Episcopal See. His successors, the bishops Wolf Dietrich, Markus Sittikusand, and Paris Lodron, were instrumental in creating the Salzburg we know today, especially its majestic Baroque churches, palaces, and castles. Most of the cultural treasures, including the Altstadt (the Old Town) and the Hohensalzburg fortress, are in the western part of the city known as Salzachufer.

One of the world's most outstanding geniuses, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, was born here in 1756. His place of birth, Hagenauer Haus, still stands to this day.

After World War II, Salzburg became one of Austria's most important commercial centres as well as one of its largest tourist destinations. One of the major reasons was the 1964 film, "Sound of Music."

The new Salzburg, with its banks, railway and bus stations, Mirabellplatz and many cheap hotels has sprung up on the right side of the river Rechtes Salzachufer.

DO & SEE

© Heather Cowper

Salzburg is a metropolis in a miniature format, which makes the city very easy to explore on foot. A walk around the centre provides stunning moments, impressive palaces and green parks cover the city and the historic centre holds for example the Mozart Square, the Franciscan Church and St. Peter's Monastery.

Hohensalzburg

The first thing to do is to take the cableway up to Hohensalzburg fortress. It is the best-preserved medieval fortress in Central Europe, and the views from atop the 1,660 foot-high Festungsberg Mountain are remarkable. To the north is the city with its church spires, and to the south the Alps.

Address: Festungsgasse 4

Altstadt

Most of Salzburg's tourist attractions are in Altstadt, the Old Town. However, the charm of the area itself is possibly the biggest draw of all. It is a listed UNESCO world heritage site, full of quaint squares, fountains, Baroque churches, chubby medieval buildings, wrought iron signs, and much more.

Address: Altstadt, Old Town

Hagenauer Haus

This is the birthplace of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, the child who was to become the musical boy genius, and one of the world's foremost composers. In July and August the "Salzburger Festspiele" festival is held in his honour.

Address: Getreidegasse 9

Rupertinum

Take a break from the idyllic surroundings, and visit Salzburg's museum for modern art. Next door is the trendy Galerie Thaddaeus Ropac galleria.

Address: Wiener Philharmoniker Gasse 9

EATING

© Heather Cowper

Salzburg has many nice eateries, and first-class restaurants can be found all over the city. As often in Central Europe, the best dining experiences can be had at traditional restaurants. The rustic environment, the large portions, and the tall glasses of beer – possibly the local favourite Stiegl – are what it is all about.

Restaurant Bar Brunbauer im Magazin

In restaurant "Brunbauer im Magazin", Richard Brunbauer's Michelin and Gault Millau acknowledged talents unfold deftly and lightly around exquisite seasonal ingredients. This unique, upscale yet warm and welcoming space, cocooned inside the mountain itself is distinctive, stylish and relaxed, characterized by the gourmet restaurant, wine bar and modern glass-encased venue on the top floor.

Address: Augustinergasse 13 a

Goldener Hirsch

A distinguished hotel, with distinguished guests. For instance, famous conductor Herbert Karajan would visit Goldener Hirsch during his tenures with the "Salzburger Festspiele." The cuisine is a refined version of traditional Austrian dishes.

Address: Getreidegasse 37

Phone: +43 662 808 40

Internet: www.goldenerhirsch.com

Pan E Vin

Salzburg has an underlying Italian feel, and the best place to enjoy Italian cooking is at this small trattoria. Choose from items such as spicy Penne All'arrabiata, and more unusual dishes like Branzino (perch) served with potato and olive mash and a chardonnay sauce.

Address: Gstättengasse 1

Phone: +43 662 84 46 66

Internet: www.panevin.at

Zum Eulenspiegel

A very romantic place on the first floor of a medieval building, with sloping rooms and beautifully laid tables. Neo-classical dishes, including potato goulash with large pieces of beef and sausage in a sweet pepper sauce, are served here.

Address: Hagenauerplatz 2
Phone: +43 662 843180
Internet: www.zum-eulenspiegel.at

Zum Fidelen Affen

There is always a festive atmosphere at "the merry monkey." Large quantities of beer are consumed, and the kitchen brings out Tyrolean specialities like Schlutzkrופן, cheese ravioli, as well as modern dishes like fried chicken salad with pumpkin seed oil.

Address: Priesterhausgasse 8
Phone: +43 662 877 361

Pfefferschiff

Possibly the most renowned restaurant in Salzburg. Located in a former chapel, about two miles north east of the city. Haute cuisine is on offer – try the Scampi tempura with asparagus, and the rhubarb tartlet for desert.

Address: Söllheim 3, Hallwang
Phone: +43 662 66 124 2
Internet: www.pfefferschiff.at

CAFES

© Heather Cowper

Like all other European cities, Salzburg has caught the cappuccino craze, but do not despair - there are alternatives. There are places that serve proper black coffee with apfelstrudel, that have a proper table to spread out your newspaper on, and where there are more people to look at besides lounging teenagers.

Café Tomaselli

Tomaselli is truly unique. It has been located in the same place since 1705, and it is said that a young Mozart would come here for his tea and ice cream. The interior is from the 19th century. In addition to the Apfelstrudel and the Sacher cake, the menu also has the hard to pronounce sweet cake Guglhupf.

Address: Alter Markt 9
Phone: +43 662 8444 880
Internet: www.tomaselli.at

Hotel Sacher

The name says it all. Pastry shops all over the world bake the famous Sacher cakes, but this is the place to try the original. It is worth noting that this is only a branch of the famous hotel in Vienna, but the recipe is the same.

Address: Schwarzstrasse 5-7
Phone: +43 151 456 0
Internet: www.sacher.com

Cést la vie

With the motto of "eating with friends" they want you to feel absolutely at home at this café. Let the hours pass while you enjoy food, nice wine and filosofical conversations.

Address: Sterneckstrasse 31
Phone: +43 664 183 97 89
Internet: www.bistro-cestlavie.at

Kaffee Alchemie

These guys mean serious coffee business. This is the place to go if "La Marzocco GB5" or "Mahlkönig Twin grinder" has any meaning to you. You can experience different espresso blends as they have 'espressos of the day'.

Address: Rudolfskai 38
Phone: +43 0681 2017 3143
Internet: www.kaffee-alchemie.at
More Info: Down by the Salzach River in Altstadt Salzburg

Icezeit

The younger crowd meet here for great coffee, wraps and fingerfood in a cool, trendy setting à la Mediterranean style. Do not miss out on the homemade ice cream, the very trademark of the establishment.

Address: Priesterhausgasse 2
Phone: +43 664 9698877
Internet: www.icezeit.at
More Info: A pure Icezeit ice cream parlour can also be found at Chiemseegasse 1, 5020 Strazburg.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

© David Pursehouse

Salzburg has a surprisingly large selection of bars. Just as with the restaurants, the best experience is at one of the traditional bars. In other words, head for Salzburg's wonderful beer gardens, the Biergarten. Try Augustiner Bräu on Augustinergasse 4, whose beer is still brewed by monks, or the Stieglkeller at Festungsgasse 10, part of the Stiegl brewery, with postcard-perfect views. Here a few other suggestions:

Republic

This artsy café turns in to a nightclub in the evenings. Located in a former cinema.

Address: Anton Neumair Platz 2
Internet: www.republic-cafe.at

Havana

Havana is a well renowned cocktail bar that attracts the trendy crowd. Havana plays mostly house music, despite the latin sounding name and provides a perfect place for a night out.

Address: Priesterhausgasse 14
Phone: +43 662 870092
Internet: www.havana.at

Chez Roland

Chez Roland attracts Salzburg's upper-class youth, the Loden preppies. It is a stylish bar located in a vault that has been hip and happening since the 70's.

Address: Giselakai 15
Phone: +43 662 874335
Internet: www.chez-roland.com

Soda Club

Soda Club is a modern and popular night club that entertains the crowds with techno and house music. Tuesday nights mean fun and flirty Reggae Dancehall.

Address: Gstättengasse 21
Phone: +43 650 9168787
Internet: www.sodaclub.cc

Kasino

For that "James Bond on a skiing holiday" feel, visit the city's casino in this castle-like building, situated in the fashionable Schloss Klessheim neighbourhood. Entrance is free of charge, but the dress code is very strict – men must wear a suit jacket and tie. For beginners, there is a very amusing quick introduction to the most common card games, etc.

Address: Schloss Klessheim

SHOPPING

© Trishhhh

Salzburg has the usual selection of designer brands, street fashion, and vintage shops. If you are looking for more unusual trinkets, the handicraft has a distinct alpine touch to it, and there is also the traditional clothing – Trachten and Lederhosen. And of course, the Mozartkugeln sweets.

Salzburger Heimatwerk

A picturesque grocery store in Altstadt with traditional and contemporary Austrian handicrafts such as pillows, duvets, blouses, and jewellery.

Address: Residenzplatz 9

Internet: www.sbg.heimatwerk.at

Dschulnigg

If locals want to buy a pair of Lederhosen, Dirndls or Trachten, this is where they come.

Address: Griesgasse 8
