Clear blue waters, mild temperatures and caressing sunshine. It is easy to see how the Greek goddess of love, Aphrodite, was born from the waves lapping onto the Cypriot shore. The mythology, language, traditions and lifestyle are Greek, but the island features a beauty that is shrouded by its own, one-of-a-kind atmosphere, shaped by a structure that divides Cyprus and its capital Nicosia into the Turkish North and the Greek South. Its multi-faceted personality has an allure that attracts tons of holidaymakers.

THE ISLAND

Pawel Kazmierczak/shutterstock

With 300 days of sunshine a year, Cyprus is a hot tourist destination, and the island's history is equally hot. Cyprus got its name 3,500 years ago when valuable copper (kypros) was found within the island, attracting hordes of Greeks and invaders. Ten different cultures have ruled the island over 27 centuries, which is easy to see in Cyprus's multi-coloured traditions and in its blend of cultures. And it's not only Cyprus's fascinating history that enchants travellers. From golden beaches and entertaining water-sports, through citrus trees, pines and the unspoiled Troodos mountains, to delightful urban areas, Cyprus is an exciting adventure. See the vibrant Cypriot villages, discover the food and culture and participate in the pulsating nightlife.

DO & SEE

Fotogrin/shutterstock

Cyprus is a stunning and diverse island, boasting a wide array of attractions and activities for visitors to enjoy.

For a taste of culture and history, consider a trip to Nicosia — the capital city of Cyprus. It's famed for its rich history, cultural hotspots, and buzzing nightlife. Alternatively, make your way to Pafos, a coastal city in the southwest, where you'll find ancient ruins like the captivating Pafos Archaeological Park.

If you're craving outdoor adventures and natural beauty, the Troodos Mountains are a must-visit. Located in the heart of Cyprus, this mountain range is celebrated for its gorgeous landscapes, hiking trails, and cultural gems. On the western coast, you'll discover the unspoilt Akamas Peninsula, with its pristine beaches and scenic hiking paths.

Pafos

Pafos is located on the southwest coast of the island and is sheltered from the north by the Troodos mountains. It has a temperate climate, one of the healthiest in the Mediterranean. Beautiful countryside, a cosmopolitan resort, historical sights as well as sporting activities, the Pafos region has something for everyone at any time of year.

Pafos, with its pleasant harbour and medieval fort, combines a dynamic holiday resort with spectacular countryside, unspoiled nature and sensational history. The region offers the possibility of enjoying both sea and mountains, as well as getting a taste of the island's culture with its many archaeological sites.

Feel the romance floating through the air in the place where Aphrodite, the ancient Greek goddess of love and beauty, once roamed. Swim in the sea by the rocks known as Petra tou Romiou, where she was believed to have risen from the waves, make a pilgrimage to her sanctuary at Kouklia, or visit the grotto near Polis where she supposedly bathed.

Whatever you desire: activity, tranquillity, good food, fine wine, spas, nature, bird watching, scenic walks, golf, culture — the Pafos region offers it all.

Archaeological Site of Nea Pafos

Delve into the captivating blend of ancient Greek and Roman history at the Pafos Archaeological Park, situated in Nea Pafos on the southwest coast of Cyprus. This extensive site, still under excavation, encompasses a significant part of the ancient city that dates back to prehistoric times and spans through the Middle Ages.

Founded in the late 4th century BC, Nea Pafos was once encircled by formidable walls and served as the centre of political and administrative life in Cyprus. Today, the park is renowned for its enchanting collection of well-preserved mosaics that depict Ancient Greek myths. These intricate and colourful masterpieces can be found in the remains of opulent Roman villas, which are among the park's most remarkable discoveries.

As you wander through this UNESCO World Heritage site, immerse yourself in the rich history and culture that influenced the lives of the early inhabitants of the island. From the worship of gods to the emergence of early Christians, the ruins of Nea Pafos offer a fascinating insight into a bygone era.

Pafos Castle & Harbour

Pafos Harbour is a vibrant hub of activity, where you can savour freshly caught fish at charming seafood restaurants or grab a quick snack and drink before embarking on thrilling water sport adventures or day boat trips. At the heart of this bustling area stands the majestic Pafos Castle, a medieval fortress with its base partially submerged in the sea.

Since the 13th century, Pafos Castle has been an imposing presence, serving as a watchtower for potential seafaring invaders, a prison, and even a storage facility for salt supplies during British rule. Today, this historic monument is a stunning backdrop for an array of cultural events, including music, dance, and pop concerts that take place throughout the summer months.

The castle is a testament to the various powers that controlled Cyprus and their efforts to solidify their rule over the land. As a symbol of the rich cultural heritage of the area, Pafos was chosen as the European Capital of Culture in 2017. Don't miss the opportunity to explore this remarkable site and soak up the lively atmosphere of Pafos Harbour during your visit to Cyprus.

Edro III Shipwreck

The Edro III Shipwreck is one of Cyprus' few coastal shipwrecks visible without getting wet. Nevertheless, divers should also be excited by what lies beneath the surface. Stranded just 20 metres offshore near Pafos's sea caves since 2011, this 83-metre freighter tilts at an angle, its hull rusting into abstract patterns against the limestone cliffs. The Sierra Leone-flagged vessel ran aground in a storm while transporting plasterboard to Rhodes, its crew rescued by British forces.

For divers, the wreck offers a rare shallow exploration (5 metres at its deepest). The propeller remains intact, though a gaping hole in the starboard side reveals corroded forklifts frozen mid-task. Schools of fish dart through the skeletal frame, while scattered debris leads to two nearby reefs: one culminating in a sea cave, the other dropping into an 18-metre gully.

Above water, the wreck's industrial starkness against the Mediterranean blues makes it a magnet for sunset photographers. Local operators run guided dives, but even snorkellers can appreciate the eerie spectacle. With removal deemed impractical, Edro III seems destined to remain Cyprus' most accessible maritime time capsule.

Aphrodite's Rock

Aphrodite's Rock is a captivating geological formation situated along the stunning coastline of southwest Cyprus, between Pafos and Limassol. This sea stack is not only famous for its natural beauty but also holds great mythological significance as the alleged birthplace of Aphrodite, the Greek goddess of love and beauty. Legend has it that Aphrodite emerged from the sea foam and was escorted to this very beach on a shell.

The area is also associated with the Byzantine hero Digenis Akritas, who supposedly hurled the giant rocks into the sea to protect Cyprus from Saracen Arab invaders. This act gave the site its name Petra tou Romiou, meaning "rock of the Greek." Visitors to Aphrodite's Rock often swim around the rock, believing that doing so three times can bring blessings such as eternal youth, beauty, good luck, fertility and true love.

Kolossi Castle

Kolossi Castle, a former Crusader stronghold, is steeped in history. The original castle was likely built in 1210 by the Frankish military, while the current structure dates back to 1454, constructed by the Hospitallers under Commander Louis de Magnac. The castle once held great strategic importance and housed extensive facilities for sugar production, a major export for Cyprus during the Middle Ages.

Today, the castle consists of a three-story keep and an attached rectangular enclosure, showcasing military architecture of its time. The region is also renowned for the production of the sweet wine, Commandaria, which is considered one of the oldest continuously-produced and named wines globally. The wine was declared to be the "wine of kings and the king of wines" by Richard the Lionheart when he celebrated his conquest of Cyprus by wedding a Spanish princess in this very castle.

Troodos Mountains

Take a trip to the mountains to discover an alternate view of the island. Rising to almost 2,000 metres above sea level, the Troodos peaks provide panoramic views of all corners of the island, a cool retreat from the heat of the coast and a popular destination for taking in the healthy mountain air and enjoying nature in all its majesty. Charming villages, some with cobbled streets and preserved folk architecture, nestle on terraced slopes among pines or amid vineyards and orchards.

Wander through the village roads in the Solea Valley, known as the "apple valley" and Marathasa, known as "valley with cherry trees". Those areas are renowned for their traditional architecture and their Byzantine churches and monasteries. Explore the traditional character of the villages of the picturesque Pitsilia, the interesting churches and the hospitality of their inhabitants and also the Wine Villages (Krasochoria), renowned for their vineyards and wine. A number of small wineries welcome visitors on wine tasting tours.

Bubbling mountain streams and nightingale's songs are often the only sounds to fill in the air in a region that poets have waxed lyrical over. The Troodos mountains are where the painted churches of Cyprus can be found, superb examples of Byzantine art, ten of which have been listed among UNESCO's World Heritage wonders.

There's much you can do, from mountain biking to playing tennis, angling in one of the dams, or even skiing in winter. A series of walking trails will take you through areas of exceptional beauty among scented pines, running streams and the occasional waterfall, stopping at a shady picnic site. Some of these form part of the European path E4, an international network of long-distance walking routes crossing the whole of Europe.

The specific climatic conditions created by the high altitudes and the peculiar geological substratum may have contributed to the unique flora found in Troodos with nearly 800 different plant species, 12 of which found nowhere else in the world. Occasionally, if lucky, one may spot a Cyprus mouflon, a kind of wild sheep which roams free in the extensive forests. Birdwatchers may spot the rare and protected eagles or the colourful hoopoe with a pink body, a black and white crest and a call which can be heard from miles around.

Baths of Aphrodite

Tucked into the Akamas Peninsula's rugged coastline, the Baths of Aphrodite — a mossy grotto where water trickles into a shallow pool — feels more like a quiet woodland chapel than a grand spa. According to legend, this was where the goddess bathed and first locked eyes with Adonis. The site's magic lies in its simplicity: a single ancient fig tree drapes shade over the spring, its roots tangled in the rocks like something from a Pre-Raphaelite painting.

More than just a photo stop, the baths anchor the Aphrodite Natural Trail, a network of walking routes through the peninsula's botanical gardens and coastal cliffs. The easiest (200 metres) path winds past oleanders and carob trees to a babbling stream, while longer hikes like the 5-kilometre Adonis Trail reveal sea views and hidden coves. Practicalities are well managed: a car park, clean toilets, and a no-frills café sit near the entrance, while the Archaeological Museum of Marion-Arsinoe (15 minutes' drive) adds context for mythology buffs. Come early to beat the coach tours; dawn light through the fig leaves makes the grotto glow.

Tombs of the Kings

Just off Tomb of the Kings Road in Pafos lies an extensive necropolis dating to 300 BC — the final resting place for Pafos's elite. Officials and aristocrats were buried in rock-carved tombs alongside jewellery and personal artefacts, though most valuables had been looted centuries ago. What remains is a striking atmosphere of stillness and mystery.

The site features 100 tombs hewn from solid rock, some with frescoed walls and towering Doric columns. For the best-preserved examples, head to the atrium area.

Kykkos Monastery

Nestled in the picturesque Marathasa Valley, Kykkos Monastery is not only the wealthiest and most lavish on the island, but also a significant cultural and religious site. Perched at an altitude of 1,318 metres, this historical gem is a must-visit for anyone keen to understand modern Cyprus.

The monastery's origins can be traced back to the end of the 11th century when it was founded by Byzantine Emperor Alexios I Komnenos. Although the original structure has not survived the various fires that have swept through the region, today's buildings are beautifully maintained and filled with intricate murals and religious treasures.

One of the monastery's most prized possessions is an icon of Panagia (the Virgin Mary) attributed to Apostle Luke. This silver gilt-covered icon is housed in a stunning tortoiseshell and mother-of-pearl shrine, which stands in front of the iconostasis.

When visiting Kykkos Monastery, be sure to explore the grounds, including the museum that showcases antiquities, documents, vessels, vestments, ornaments, icons, frescoes, and woodcarvings. You'll also find that the monastery produces Zivania spirit and other alcoholic drinks, and hosts religious fairs on September 8th (Birth of the Virgin) and August 15th (Dormition of the Virgin).

As a place of worship, observance, and commercial enterprise, Kykkos Monastery offers a unique insight into the lives of Greek Cypriots and their religion. Don't miss the chance to experience this captivating site during your time in Cyprus.

Mount Olympus (Chionistra)

Mount Olympus, also known as Chionistra, is the highest point in Cyprus, standing tall at 1,952 metres (6,404 feet) in the heart of the Troodos Mountains. When you visit, you'll be rewarded with breathtaking views of rugged landscapes and the shimmering Mediterranean Sea in the distance.

If you decide to visit Mount Olympus in the winter, you can enjoy skiing at the resort, which consists of the Sun Valley and North Face areas. Operated by the Cyprus Ski Club, the resort offers a variety of ski lifts and slopes catering to different skill levels.

In addition to skiing and hiking, the mountain holds historical significance, with the late first-century geographer Strabo reporting a temple dedicated to Aphrodite Acraea on one of its promontories. Experience the beauty and history of Mount Olympus during your visit to Cyprus.

Larnaca

Larnaca is where East meets West, one of the oldest continuously inhabited cities of the world and a fascinating blend of the many civilizations that shaped its history. This quiet seafront city, situated on the southeastern coast of Cyprus, near the island's main airport, is a perfect starting point from which to explore Cyprus and its endless possibilities. Villages offering agrotourism, beautiful beaches, sports and recreation options, cultural events, religious tourism and authentic Cyprus taverns are just some of the choices in and around town.

Welcome to Larnaca, the gateway to Cyprus.

See the Old Town and enjoy the sun and sea at the seafront. Here, there are many clubs, lounges and bars. The ruins of Kition, founded by Noah's grandchild Kittim, and the 17th-century fort are certainly worth seeing. After Mecca and Medina, the Hala Sultan Tekke mosque, built in honour of the prophet Mohammed's relative is one of the Muslims' most important destinations for pilgrimages. A most-fascinating site is Choirokoitia, a settlement from the earliest period of the Stone Age.

Larnaca Salt Lake

Discover the breathtaking beauty of Larnaca Salt Lake, a complex network of four salt lakes located just west of Larnaca city.

As the second largest salt lake in Cyprus, it spans a total area of 2.2 square kilometres and is considered an important wetland, holding the status of a Special Protected Area.

During winter months, the lake fills with water, providing a temporary home for numerous migrating bird species, including thousands of vibrant pink flamingos. These elegant birds can be seen feeding on the brine shrimp Artemia Salina, a crucial element of the lake's food chain. As summer arrives, the water evaporates, leaving a crust of salt and a striking landscape. In the past, salt harvested from Larnaca Salt Lake was one of Cyprus's major exports.

A 4 km-long nature trail winds through the area, offering an opportunity to explore the lake's surroundings and observe the diverse flora and fauna. Larnaca Salt Lake is not only a stunning natural attraction but also a site with a rich history dating back to the Late Bronze Age.

Hala Sultan Tekke

Hala Sultan Tekke, situated on the west bank of the Larnaca Salt Lake, about 6 kilometres southwest of Larnaca, is a mosque and tekke complex that holds significant importance in Islam. The mosque was built just before 1787, and its current structure was completed in 1816. The complex is set amidst a beautiful garden and stands as a symbol of tranquillity.

Ranked as the fourth most important holy place of worship in the religion, the mosque is built over the tomb of Umm Haram, the foster-mother of the Prophet Mohammed and wife of Ubada bin al-Samit, a high-ranking officer who led raids against Cyprus in the 7th century.

Nicosia (Lefkosia)

Nicosia, also known as Lefkosia, the island's capital, combines both old and new in a busy modern commercial and business centre and a centuries-old culture. The centre of the city comprehends its old quarter surrounded by a Venetian sandstone fortress wall with a moat and heart-shaped bastions.

Mosques and palm trees give an oriental atmosphere to the old city. Wander along narrow streets with overhanging balconies and beautifully restored pedestrian precincts with craft shops, cafes and taverns. Make sure you stop off at St John's Cathedral with its frescoes and the marvellous museum of Byzantine icons. In the evening catch a concert or an exhibition at the Famagusta Gate, one of the three original entrances into the old city, which has now been restored and it is used as a cultural centre.

The new town spreads beyond the walls with a modern European-like centre of high-rise buildings, office blocks, shops and cafes, expanding into suburban residential areas. Lefkosia offers the best in shopping with Stasikratous Street as the destination for an ultimate shopping experience.

Of the city's main sights, Cyprus Museum houses the best collection of archaeological artefacts on the island, including a first century AD Roman statuette of Aphrodite of Soli and the original mosaic of Leda and the Swan, while the Leventis Museum depicts the history of the town.

Cyprus Museum

The Cyprus Museum, located in Nicosia, is the perfect destination for anyone looking to delve into the rich history and civilization of Cyprus. The museum showcases a vast array of ancient artefacts that demonstrate the island's significant role in the development of civilization. The collections span the Neolithic period to the Roman era, featuring tools, stone vessels, figurines, pottery, and much more.

As you wander through the well-labelled and chronologically arranged exhibits, you'll be amazed by the island's unique archaeological treasures. Some highlights include the rich collection of Early Bronze Age pottery, Archaic statues reflecting Egyptian and Assyrian influences, and stunning finds from the royal tombs of Salamis. Agia Napa

Once sleepy fishing villages, the fabulous beaches of fine white sand of Agia Napa and Protaras, and the coastal area of Paralimni with its hundreds of windmills, nowadays buzz with life.

This area is known collectively as the Kokkinochoria, “red soil villages,” because of the rich red earth in which Cyprus’ famous potatoes are grown. Culture lovers can explore the medieval churches found in villages like Sotira or go around the folk art museums displaying rural artefacts in Deryneia and Avgorou. Children will love the Marine Life museum or the new Sea Museum, “Thalassa”, in Agia Napa, which has an amazing replica of a 4th-century trading ship which sank off the coast of Kyrenia. Or you could stop at the tiny estuary known by the locals as Potamos and watch the fishing boats haul in their catch in their multi-coloured baskets.

Spend the day sunbathing at the beach, swimming in warm turquoise waters or taking a short cruise along the coast. Some of the best snorkelling and diving spots are at Cape Greco, the national forest park, with its secluded coves and rocky outcrops, impressive cliff-top views and sea caves.

In the evening, dine at one of the many restaurants, especially the local ones in Paralimni, or jive to the latest sounds at one of the numerous nightclubs.

Northern Cyprus

For many travellers, a visit to Northern Cyprus feels like stepping back in time. This region, which is controlled by Turkey, is a world away from the busy resorts, malls, and familiar international chains that can be found in the south. Instead, visitors will find remote villages and a slower pace of life. This sense of suspended animation can be traced back to the Turkish invasion of 1974, which led to the north becoming isolated from the rest of the world and self-proclaimed as a republic, recognized only by Turkey.

Northern Cyprus stretches from the Karpass Peninsula to Morphou Bay, Cape Kormakitis, and its westernmost point, the Kokkina exclave. The southernmost point of Northern Cyprus is the village of Louroujina. This region is separated from the rest of the island by a buffer zone controlled by the United Nations, which also divides Nicosia, the largest city on the island and the capital of both north and south Cyprus.

Despite its isolated status, Northern Cyprus has a lot to offer travellers. Its two prettiest towns, Girne and Gazimağusa, are located here, as well as half of the capital city. The region is home to three of the island's mightiest Crusader castles (St Hilarion, Buffavento and Kantara) and the island's most important archaeological site at Salamis. The Kyrenia Mountains, in particular, are a hiker's paradise, and many of the region's beaches are relatively untouched by high-rise resorts. Additionally, a visit to Northern Cyprus provides the unique opportunity to experience two very different cultures: the Orthodox Greek Cypriot and the Muslim Turkish Cypriot worlds.

The north can also feel more affordable than the south, as it is not part of the Eurozone. Its tourist infrastructure is not as well-developed yet.

Kyrenia Castle & Shipwreck Museum

Kyrenia Castle, situated at the entrance of a picturesque harbour, is a remarkable historical site dating back to the 7th century. Originally built by the Byzantines and modified by various conquerors throughout the centuries, the castle offers you a captivating glimpse into Cyprus's past. As you walk along the ramparts, you can enjoy stunning views of the harbour and explore the castle's cistern, dungeon, chapel and two small museums.

One of the castle's most intriguing attractions is the Kyrenia Shipwreck Museum, housing the remains of a 4th century Greek merchant ship discovered in Cypriot waters. Believed to have sunk around 300 BC, the ship's cargo included amphorae, almonds, grain, wine and millstones from the Greek islands of Samos, Rhodes and Kos. The museum offers a unique opportunity for you to explore an ancient shipwreck and its well-preserved artefacts, providing insight into maritime history and trade during the time of Alexander the Great and his successors.

Güzelyurt (Morphou)

Welcome to Güzelyurt — a charming town in Northern Cyprus, nestled in the centre of the island's citrus-growing region. With its name translating to "Beautiful Place", Güzelyurt lives up to its reputation with stunning, rich and fertile landscapes. Located close to the Troodos Mountains' foothills, this town is a bountiful agricultural hub, producing a variety of vegetables and fruits, earning it the nickname "Fruit Basket" of Cyprus.

While Güzelyurt may not be as architecturally or culturally diverse as other towns in Northern Cyprus, it boasts deep historical roots and hidden charms waiting to be discovered. During your visit, make sure to explore the Morphou Archaeology and Nature Museum and the Church of St Mamas, a late 18th-century church that blends Gothic and Byzantine architectural styles, housing a stunning glass chandelier. You can also immerse yourself in local life by visiting the bustling market on Saturdays, where you can find fresh local produce. Enjoy a scenic drive along the coast, stopping at roadside stalls for freshly squeezed juice, and if you're feeling adventurous, join the windsurfers who flock to Güzelyurt's windy shores to ride the waves all year round.

Morphou Archaeology & Nature Museum

Located in Guzelyurt, the Morphou Archaeology and Nature Museum is a unique attraction that combines natural history and archaeology.

Originally the palace of the Bishop of Morphou, the building now houses a museum that opened in 1979 after restoration. The ground floor showcases a collection of stuffed animals native to Cyprus, while the upper floors exhibit a wide range of archaeological finds from the Neolithic and Bronze Ages, including displays from the Tumba Tou Skuru settlement.

The courtyard serves as an open-air museum, featuring pieces from the Classical, Hellenistic and Roman periods. The museum's most notable artefacts are the 'Golden Leaves of Soli', discovered in 2005, which include a breathtaking tiara of delicately intertwined gold leaves. Another significant piece is the 2nd-century AD statue of the Anatolian Goddess Artemis of Ephesus, found at the Salamis ruins in 1980. Just around the corner from the popular St Mamas Church and Icon Museum, the Morphou Archaeology and Nature Museum is a rewarding visit for those interested in the rich history and natural beauty of Northern Cyprus.

Limassol

Located in the southern coast of the island, Limassol is geographically the largest city in Cyprus and the second largest in population after Nicosia. Its central position offers easy access to all major cities as well as the Troodos Mountains within a 35- to 45-minute drive. It is also conveniently situated only 35 minutes away from both Larnaca and Pafos airports.

It is a fascinating area with a diversified character which caters to a variety of tastes and preferences: a heaven for sun lovers, with 16 kilometres of sandy beaches, this cosmopolitan destination also boasts high quality accommodation options, countless activities and a wide array of vibrant events and festivals throughout the year. In the midst of its lively nightlife and entertainment, one can still appreciate the cultural aspect with visits to archaeological sites and colourful wine villages.

Cyprus Motor Museum

The Cyprus Motor Museum, founded by Mr Dimi Mavropoulos, a veteran of international and local rally racing, offers a unique experience for classic car enthusiasts. Since its opening in February 2014, the museum remains the only automobile museum in Cyprus, boasting 3,500 square metres of excellence and a vast collection of cars, including a 1912 Ford Model T roadster and a car donated by the US government to Cyprus President Makarios III.

Visitors can enjoy a variety of events throughout the year, including exhibitions, fashion shows, and photoshoots. For a truly memorable experience, rent a classic car, bus, or motorbike for your wedding, city tour, or special day photoshoot. With a well-curated collection and clear signage, the Cyprus Motor Museum is a must-visit gem for car lovers and tourists alike.

Fasouri Watermania

Fasouri Watermania, the largest water park in Cyprus, offers a refreshing escape from the hot summer days on the island. With a wide array of water activities for all ages, the park features dozens of thrilling slides, a lazy river, and the country's biggest wave pool. In addition to water attractions, visitors can indulge in a massage, enjoy a fish spa treatment, or get a temporary tattoo as a souvenir of their visit.

The park is renowned for its cleanliness, family-friendly atmosphere, and welcoming staff. Multiple restaurants and snack bars offer a variety of dining options, while life jackets can be rented for added safety. Open on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays, Fasouri Watermania is a must-visit destination for a fun-filled day of water adventures and unforgettable memories.

Oleastro Olive Park

Nestled in the scenic village of Anogyra, Oleastro Olive Park offers you an interactive and educational experience of Cypriot rural life and the timeless importance of olives. At the park, you'll learn about traditional olive extraction methods, the myriad benefits of olives, and their central role in Cypriot households.

Oleastro Olive Park features a state-of-the-art ecological olive mill, museum, restaurant and store specializing in olive products. Founded by Andreas and Lina Ellinas, the park celebrates the olive tree's rich history in the Mediterranean diet and Cyprus's authentic countryside.

Events

Well-known events and festivals create a vibrant and colourful atmosphere all over the island. One of the brightest events is the Carnival, taking place in February and March in all towns. The Flower Festival, which occurs every May, celebrates the beauty of spring with a floral exhibition boasting the rich variety of Cyprus' authentic wild flora.

Throughout the year, music, dance and theatre festivals, operas, ancient drama and modern ballets enrich Cyprus cultural calendar. Athletic events such as Regattas, cycling races, the Cyprus Rally, the international Open Marathon, beach volley tournaments and sporting events with competitions in boxing, karate, triathlon, marathon, shooting, rhythmic gymnastics and cycling are just a few of the annual athletic events that take place in every corner of Cyprus.

BEACH LIFE

Alexander Chaikin/shutterstock

Fine, white sand and clear blue water — bathing in Cyprus is a memorable experience. With a wealth of beaches to choose from, you're bound to find one that suits your taste. From the untouched inlets of the western coast, to lively resorts in the east, the island has something for everyone.

The eastern coast is famous for its fine, white, sandy beaches with shallow turquoise waters. The long southern coast with its grey sand lends itself to long winter walks or jogging, while the secluded coves of the western coast beckon to those who want to reflect and relax in the tranquillity of its seafront.

Nissi Beach, Agia Napa

A graceful green island pops up from shallow, crystalline waters. Holidaymakers lie down on the white, sandy shore that stretches along the 500-metre beach. Windsurfers hurtle on the sea and volleyball players keep themselves fit at the beach volleyball courts. White pelicans hover with elegance above the sea-line, plunging rapidly into blue water. It's not a dream — it's Nissi beach.

Aphrodite's Beach, Pafos

Nestled between Limassol and Pafos, Aphrodite's Beach is permeated by a romantic atmosphere, in a suggestive backdrop that is hardly forgettable.

Aphrodite, the goddess of love and beauty, chose the rock that stands imposingly in the beach's shallow waters to begin her life, donating a mythological aura to its shore.

Makronissos Beach, Agia Napa

The dolphin-tail-shaped peninsula of Makronissos boasts pristine sandy beaches that lead gently into the clear blue sea. Surrounded by lush green shrubs, a short two-minute walk takes you to a more secluded stretch of coastline, perfect for a peaceful and relaxing day at the beach. The area's former reef status has resulted in fascinating rock formations that add to its charm and allure.

At the tip of the peninsula, you'll discover ancient tombs, which can be explored at no cost. Immerse yourself in the natural beauty and history of this captivating coastal destination, an ideal spot for beach lovers and those seeking a serene escape in the stunning surroundings of Cyprus.

Coral Bay, Pegeia

Coral Bay, one of Cyprus's best beaches, is a beautiful stretch of golden sand nestled between protective cliffs. This sun-worshipper's paradise boasts calm waters, making it perfect for swimming and water sports. Recognized with a Blue Flag, the beach guarantees clean and safe waters for all to enjoy. Umbrellas and sun loungers are available, ensuring a comfortable and relaxing experience.

Despite its popularity among tourists, controlled development has allowed Coral Bay to retain its charm. A variety of restaurants and bars are conveniently located within walking distance, offering a diverse range of dining options.

Fig Tree Bay, Protaras

Fig Tree Bay is the most precious gem in this coastal tiara and is named after the solitary fig tree that was planted here by eastern invaders in the 17th century. On the headland of the bay one can see the recently revealed, glass-covered Hellenistic tombs. A selection of watersports abound at these beaches, ranging from skiing and paragliding to snorkelling and scuba diving, and boats wait on the piers to take you on unforgettable trips. The bay also has excellent facilities, with sunbeds and parasols available for hire. It provides disabled access and is serviced by a lifeguard.

Akti Olympion, Limassol

Akti Olympion Beach showcases how a city beach can be both lively and relaxing. Once a narrow strip of pebbly sand, Limassol's seafront has undergone a significant makeover and now thrives as an attractive and bustling city center. The beach boasts pristine waters and over 2 kilometres of soft, inviting sand.

Enjoy a leisurely stroll along the promenade or take in the sea view while wandering through the nearby park. Akti Olympion Beach adds a refreshing touch to the city atmosphere, making it a great spot to unwind and soak up some sun.

Konnos Beach, Protaras & Agia Napa

Located to the East of Agia Napa, Konnos bay stands out from within the Cape Greco National Park. Found in between Protaras and Agia Napa, the beach is prominent for its white sands and crystal clear water. Flanked by rocky hills full of pine trees, the road to the beach offers excellent opportunities for amazing photographs. Special plastic sun beds, tailor-made for this beach and which can be used on water, are available for rent. Many yachters drop anchor here to relax for hours.

Latsi Beach is a hidden gem on Cyprus's coastline, featuring a blend of soft sand and small pebbles. The beach has minimal facilities, making it an ideal spot to bring your own umbrella and enjoy a peaceful picnic. The waters here are clean and tranquil, perfect for a relaxing swim surrounded by stunning natural scenery.

This charming beach is part of the quaint village of Latsi, which is situated within the Polis municipality. The village boasts a small harbour and the beach offers lifeguards as well as sunbed and umbrella rentals for visitors.

Address: Latsi Beach, Latsi, Polis Municipality, Pafos District

More Info: The name of the village is also spelled Latchi, Lachi and Lakki.

Fontana Amorosa

Fontana Amorosa is a gorgeous remote beach known for its captivating turquoise waters. Accessible by 4x4 vehicles, boats, or a challenging hike, this unspoiled gem has been preserved from commercial development, offering a pristine and serene environment. Snorkelling and swimming in the shallow, blue-green water are popular activities here, and the underwater world is teeming with fascinating artefacts and marine life. Make sure to bring your snorkelling gear and explore the underwater wonders, but remember not to disturb any ancient clay pots or artefacts you may come across.

If you're up for a day trip, consider taking a jeep "bus" service for Aphrodite's Bath parking area.

Kourion Beach

Kourion Beach, with its dramatic landscape and unique atmosphere, provides a thrilling alternative to the calmer beaches typically found in Cyprus. Famed for being a popular kitesurfing destination, the steady winds and looming limestone cliffs create the perfect conditions for the sport. These cliffs are also an excellent spot to observe the beach from above, as they overlook the ancient ruins of Kourion.

Although strong currents make swimming off-limits in the eastern part of the coast, wading into the waves further along is both safe and enjoyable. The beach offers plenty of space, wooden walkways, sun loungers, and lifeguard supervision for a comfortable experience. Families will appreciate the on-site playgrounds and restaurants, while the beautiful sand and refreshing breeze make sunbathing a dream.

Lara Beach

Lara Beach, just north of the busy resort of Coral Bay, offers a wild and secluded escape for those seeking a more private experience. Requiring a bit of extra effort and a 4x4 vehicle to traverse the dirt road leading to it, this hidden gem rewards visitors with a serene sandy cove and stunning views. As an added bonus, the lack of artificial light in the area creates the perfect environment for green and loggerhead turtles to nest, with easily spotted markers put up by dedicated volunteers. So, if you're up for a bit of an adventure, Lara Beach is well worth the journey.

Malindi Beach, Limassol

Situated at the northern edge of Limassol, Malindi Beach is a superb sandy stretch that's arguably one of the finest in Cyprus. Found near St

Raphael Marina, the beach is divided into two parts: Malindi Beach to the right and St Raphael Beach to the left. With St Raphael Beach often busier due to its adjacent hotel, Malindi Beach provides ample space for sunbathing, with a generous supply of loungers and sandy spots for those who prefer to lay out a towel.

The sea at Malindi is remarkably calm and shallow, remaining knee-deep for around 50 metres out, making it an ideal destination for families with children or those who enjoy seafront ball games. Malindi Beach Bar is a popular hotspot among locals and tourists alike for its delicious food, refreshing cocktails, and striking views, though it can be a tad pricey. For a more budget-friendly option, check out the unpretentious beach shack cafe next door, offering cold beers, snacks, and coffee.

Mackenzie Beach, Larnaca

Just a stone's throw away from the heart of Larnaca, Mackenzie Beach is a gorgeous one-kilometre stretch of golden sand lapped by tranquil, azure waters that are perfect for swimming. The expansive beach offers a wealth of loungers and open spaces for those who prefer to bring their own beach set-up, along with a range of amenities such as restaurants, bars, and public toilets. It's an excellent alternative to the more crowded Finikoudes Beach in Larnaca.

Address: Makenzie Beach, Larnaca

Public Transport: Bus 425 from Larnaca Centre to Mackenzie Beach.

More Info: To reach Mackenzie Beach, you can drive, take a taxi from Larnaca, or hop on the 425 bus. Note that sometimes the name of the beach is spelled as Makenzie.

Pissouri Beach, Pissouri

Boasting the prestigious Blue Flag status, Pissouri Beach is a popular destination on Cyprus's south coast halfway between Limassol and Pafos. Located near the top-rated Columbia Beach Resort and a village with its amenities and welcoming bars, this beach offers an array of water sports such as jet skiing, windsurfing and paragliding. For the dedicated sun-seeker, there's even a nearby nudist beach.

The drive from the nearest big town pays off — warm waters and uncrowded pebbled shores await. Hiking trails add adventure, while sunbed and umbrella rentals come at fair prices. Lifeguards patrol the shore in the summer, with pedal boats, water scooters and motor boats available for hire.

Address: Pissouri Bay, Pissouri

More Info: Pissouri is a pebble beach.

Lady's Mile Beach, Asomatos

Stretching approximately three miles, Lady's Mile Beach may not live up to its name, but it certainly holds the title for the longest beach in Cyprus.

This expansive sandy haven is popular with both horse riders and sunbathers, offering a slightly wild feel despite a few nearby restaurants. A short walk inland reveals the impressive Limassol salt lake, which, if visited in winter, boasts an unmissable sight: flocks of migratory flamingos numbering up to 20,000.

With its pristine sand and clean waters, Lady's Mile Beach promises a serene experience, especially if you choose a spot away from the restaurants. The beach provides ample space to relax, and the clear, cool waters are perfect for refreshing dips. It might be windy at times, so don't forget to bring your own umbrellas, towels, and equipment. Free parking is available right next to the beach for added convenience.

Address: Lady's Mile Beach, Limassol, Akrotiri, Cyprus

Paramáli Turtle Beach, Paramáli

Paramáli Beach, with its flat sea, consistent breeze, and relatively uncrowded waters, has become a go-to spot for kite surfers along Cyprus's south coast. While the journey may be long, the beach's appeal for kite surfers makes it worthwhile. For non-surfers, the beach offers the opportunity to watch these exhilarating water sports in action, though facilities are limited, which might be a refreshing change from busier city beaches.

This picturesque shingle beach, framed by cliffs, is also a popular nesting ground for turtles, including loggerheads and green turtles. During the breeding season, visitors are advised to take care not to disturb the nests. Turtle Watch patrols the beach, collecting data and placing protective cages around the nests to help increase turtle numbers.

Address: Paramáli Beach, Paramáli, Akrotiri, Cyprus

More Info: Please note that dogs are not permitted on the beach. If you're lucky enough, you might even spot a turtle during pre-dawn hours.

Dog's Beach, Pissouri

Dog's Beach, situated at the end of the Genesis Aphrodite's Trail, is a lovely, secluded rocky beach with fantastic views. It has two entrances: one under the highway and the other directly from the road. Parking can be found nearby.

The waters at Dog's Beach can be muddy and wavy, with some swirling currents near the edges, so caution is advised. Friendly dogs are often spotted on the beach, adding to its charm. Dog's Beach serves as a fantastic alternative for those seeking a quieter spot.

The Genesis Aphrodite's Trail, starting at Pissouri Pine Bay, is a breathtaking hike with varying difficulty levels. The first part is easy to moderate and family-friendly, while the second section is steep, rocky, and challenging. The trail ends at Dog's Beach, taking approximately 1 hour and 40 minutes one way. This hike is a must for those who enjoy stunning views and a rewarding destination.

Address: Prolimnos Beach (Dog's Beach), Pissouri

More Info: Note that there are no facilities, benches, or shade on this beach, so be prepared to bring your own.

Golden Beach, Karpas

Golden Beach, located at the far end of the Karpas Peninsula in the northeast of Cyprus, is a truly remarkable remote beach. Just 130 kilometres (80 miles) from the Syrian coast, this stunning, isolated spot has a wild and pristine beauty that's sure to impress. With lush greenery reaching all the way to the golden sand, it's no wonder the beach is also a nesting site for green and loggerhead turtles. Although it may be a bit of a rocky path to get there, the journey is well worth the effort.

Glapsides Beach, Famagusta

Glapsides Beach (occasionally called Silver Beach) offers one of Northern Cyprus' most accessible seaside experiences — a kilometre of fine sand that shelves so gradually you'll be waist-deep 50 metres from shore. This makes it ideal for tentative swimmers and families with young children, though the real draw is the clarity of its emerald-hued water, where snorkellers can spot darting bream and the occasional octopus.

Unlike some Mediterranean beaches, Glapsides remains refreshingly low-key. Two modest beachfront restaurants serve grilled seafood and cold Efes beer, their wooden walkways preventing sand from sticking to flip-flops. A small fee grants access to the organised section with sun loungers, though budget-conscious travellers can still claim a free patch further along.

The beach's practicality shines through: pram-friendly terrain, clean facilities, and lifeguards in peak season. Nearby, the ruins of Salamis — a sprawling 3,000-year-old city — provide cultural counterpoint when sun fatigue sets in. Come evening, the vibe stays mellow; expect acoustic covers at the beach bar rather than thumping clubs. It's the sort of place where toddlers build sandcastles undisturbed while parents doze under umbrellas.

DINING

IrinaChevzhik/shutterstock

With emphasis on fresh local ingredients, a pungent mix of herbs and spices and a light spattering of olive oil, Cypriot food is essentially Mediterranean, characterised by a similarity to Greek food and enriched by a hint of the Middle East and Asia Minor's culinary traditions.

Both poets and travellers have praised the flavours of the island. The grains and pulses, sun-ripened fresh fruit and vegetables, high-protein fish, lean meat and poultry, olive oil and wine are local temptations that have been extolled by health specialists for their virtues.

A cornucopia of restaurants, taverns and cafes, many with outdoor seating and a stunning background, forms a culinary extravaganza with a taste of traditional and international cuisines.

Piatsa Gourounaki (Nicosia)

Located in downtown Nicosia, Piatsa Gourounaki gathers Greek specialties and grilled meat and cheese, creating a menu that is a great insight into Cypriot traditions. The popular restaurant attracts a great crowd, being one of the most-loved in town.

kirill_makarov/shutterstock

Cafes can be found in the old part of towns, on the beach or even in villages. Relax and experience a unique atmosphere everywhere you go.

Sample the strong coffee that, though it is similar to the Turkish one, has its own touch and personality. Try the frappe — a cold, foam-covered iced coffee. Indulge on some Soujouko — a Cypriot sweet made of grape juice and meet the mellow side of Cyprus.

Traditional Cyprus coffee is very different from European coffee, in that it is brewed in small pots with long handles called 'mbriki'. The coffee itself is made from fresh finely ground coffee beans and is poured into tinted porcelain cups. The amount of sugar added depends on your taste: 'sketo' (no sugar), 'metrio' (half a teaspoon of sugar), and 'glykis' (a full teaspoon of sugar).

Ousia Lounge Cafe (Limassol)

One of Limassol's most fashionable lounge restaurants and cafes, Ousia blends traditional Cyprus style with a modern twist and the result is remarkably pleasant. The cafe is located opposite the medieval Limassol Castle, where the area has turned into a buzzing hub of bars and restaurants.

SHOPPING

Yulia Avanessova/shutterstock

Go for handicrafts like lace and ceramics for a typical, locally-made souvenir from Cyprus. Naturally, you can buy from shops and markets in one of the big towns, but anyone who visits the villages, where much of Cyprus' handicrafts are made, also has the chance to familiarize themselves with Cyprus' original handicraft culture — and with villagers who are happy to show their work.

In many villages and in the island's cultural areas handiwork is also sold at better prices than in town. Other items which can be worth going for are spectacles, shoes, leather items, suitcases and gold, which are cheaper than in most European cities.

Nicosia, Pafos, Larnaca and Limassol have their quaint shopping areas, featuring international brands along with souvenir shops, pottery shops and open-air markets. In tourist resorts like Agia Napa, the shops stay open all day during the week, but in towns such as Nicosia and Larnaca shops tend to close earlier.

Larnaca Market

Big designer names fill up the fashionable Ermou Street in Larnaca, but on Sunday, its sparkling charm is clouded by an even greater event that takes place in Ermou Street's parking lot. Larnaca Sunday Market features fruit, vegetables, souvenirs, clothes, antiques and knickknacks at unbeatable prices.

Nissi Avenue (Agia Napa)

The long promenade that stretches along the coastline in the touristy Agia Napa becomes the shopping hub of the area, and perhaps of the entire island. The trendy Nissi Avenue has seen numerous shops opening in recent years, becoming a must-visit in town. Souvenir shops are some of the most stormed by tourists, although designer clothing and beachwear shops are certainly well-known too.

Shopping in Pafos

The main shopping areas develop along Poseidonos Avenue, Apostolou Pavlou Street and Makarios Avenue, with focus on pottery, souvenirs and clothes. The Pafos Market is also not to be missed. Selling fresh products and knickknacks, it is one of the biggest and most interesting in the island. The flea markets that every now and again fill up some of the streets can be a true source of second-hand treasures, although you might have to haggle a bit to obtain a reasonable price. Kings Avenue Mall, located nearby Tombs of the Kings, is a shopper's paradise: a real wealth of international shops and traditional restaurants makes it the ideal destination for an afternoon of crazy shopping.

Passport & Visa

Cyprus's passport and visa requirements vary for different nationalities. Citizens of the European Union (EU) countries (including Iceland, Norway, Switzerland, and Liechtenstein) need a passport or a valid ID. The rest of the citizens of other countries will need a passport.

Many countries, including the United States, Canada, United Arab Emirates, Australia, and Japan, benefit from visa-free entry for tourism short stays of up to 90 days maximum.

Travellers requiring a short-stay visa (valid for up to 90 days), such as those from some Middle-Eastern, African, or Asian nations, the visa must be obtained prior to arrival. All visitors should ensure their passport is valid for at least six months beyond their intended stay. If you're not sure whether or not to apply for a visa, we recommend you contact the embassy or consulate in your country.

For Northern Cyprus, nationals of most countries will need to obtain a visa for stays of under 90 days. Citizens of the European Union (EU) countries, United Kingdom and United States do not need visas for Northern Cyprus, for tourism entry and up to 90 days.

Best Time to Visit

Cyprus enjoys a warm, Mediterranean climate that's characterized by the region's long, hot summers and mild, wet winters. The best time to visit Cyprus is in the summer for the most heat and sunshine. Although, if you prefer milder temperatures then spring is perfect and the sea water is still mild enough for swimming. If you come to Cyprus during this time of the year, especially from April to June, you can also enjoy a lot of events, mostly music events, with live shows of all of music genres.

Public Transport

Cyprus offers an extensive bus network connecting towns, airports, and rural areas — a system developed to support the island's tourism industry.

In Northern Cyprus, transport options are more limited. You'll find renting a car the most practical way to travel between towns.

Taxi

Taxis operate around the clock in all towns of Cyprus. Taxis can be booked by phone or be hailed on the street.

Urban taxis are all provided with meters and charging commences upon entering the taxi. The transport of passengers by urban taxis without using the taximeter is not permitted.

You can order a cab using the Bolt app.

Post

The opening hours of the post offices in Cyprus normally reflect the laid-back attitude of the entire island, being open 8:30am-1pm and 3pm-4:45pm except from May to August when the offices close at 1pm.

Post offices are easy to spot thanks to the yellow sign that pops out of the wall. In the offices you will find stamps and postcards and you will be able to post letters. Mail boxes are also located throughout Cyprus and they are yellow and round-shaped. Stamps are also available in some kiosks.

Pharmacy

Pharmacies are located all over the island, operating on a system that features an open pharmacy at night or weekends every day.

Pharmacies have a green cross on the outside which makes them easy to find.
