Lanzarote has it all: sunny skies, pristine beaches and crystal-clear waters. But its natural wonders go far beyond the obvious, revealing a wild island shaped by fire, wind and Atlantic tides. With more than 300 volcanic peaks, the landscape glows in pink, purple and ochre tones. Beneath the surface, caves, tunnels and underground lakes invite exploration. Some say Lanzarote was once part of Atlantis; today, it remains a timeless gem of the Canary Islands.

THE ISLAND

Mihai-Bogdan Lazar / Shutterstock.com

Lanzarote's African influence is evident, but it was a European — Lancelotto Malocello from Genoa — who "discovered" the island in the 14th century. The island's 795 square kilometres showcase a lava-formed landscape, displaying the Canary Islands' most stunning palette, making Lanzarote an ideal destination for both active and relaxing holidays. And let's not forget the local specialities, where Spanish and African cuisine blend seamlessly to create delicious and unique dishes.

On the island, you can opt to unwind in tranquil resorts or seek adventure in Lanzarote's breathtaking natural landscapes. Attractions such as the Atlántida lava tunnel, Cueva de los Verdes, and Jameos del Agua offer fascinating expeditions deep into the Earth. Prepare to be enchanted by the charm of this remarkable island.

DO & SEE

Lanzarote offers a splendid mix of nature and culture, inviting visitors to soak up the sun or embark on a thrilling mountain climb. Delve into the UNESCO-listed Timanfaya National Park, pay a visit to the home of esteemed architect César Manrique, ride the perfect wave on your surfboard, or simply relax on the island's picturesque beaches. With its diverse attractions, Lanzarote truly has something for everyone.

Timanfaya National Park

Often referred to as Montañas del Fuego (Fire Mountains), this area showcases a fascinating array of geological phenomena and is home to a unique endemic flora, thriving in the high subterranean temperatures. Timanfaya serves as a living laboratory for biological research and stands out as one of Europe's most extraordinary natural habitats. In recognition of its distinctiveness, UNESCO designated the Timanfaya volcanic field as a national park in 1993.

César Manrique Foundation – Volcano House in Tahíche

Art and nature intertwine in the spectacular setting of the Volcano House, managed by the César Manrique Foundation.

Built into an old lava flow, this former home of renowned artist César Manrique offers a unique insight into his life and creative vision.

The upper storey of this 3,000 square metre building showcases traditional Lanzarote architecture, while the lower storey is ingeniously built around five natural volcanic bubbles connected by tunnels. Marvel at the swimming pool, ballroom, and barbeque area, all surrounded by abundant plant life and striking basalt.

The foundation houses an array of Spanish paintings and exhibition pieces, alongside fascinating photos, magazine articles, and audio clips that shed light on Manrique's life and artistic philosophy. Embrace the awe-inspiring blend of nature and creativity, and leave inspired by the harmony achieved in this remarkable volcanic abode.

BEACH LIFE

Pawel Kazmierczak / Shutterstock.com

Lanzarote is home to over a 100 stunning beaches, but be aware that the sea can be wild. A red flag on the beach means swimming is prohibited; yellow flags indicate swimming is at your own risk; and a green flag signals you're good to go! The best beaches are typically found at the southern end of the island — in the Papagayo area — while the rest of the coastline offers less crowded seaside spots.

Playa de Papagayo

Discover the beauty of Playa de Papagayo, a contender for Spain's most beautiful beach, tucked away at the southern end of Lanzarote. This stunning bay features a small island off its shores and a mountain of fine white sand, creating an idyllic setting for a day at the beach. It is well worth the 10-minute off-road drive, offering a serene atmosphere with ample space to lay down a towel and relax. The beach is a fantastic spot for snorkelling, where you can encounter an array of marine life, including fish, sea stars and sea cucumbers, all within a short distance from the shore.

Playa Blanca

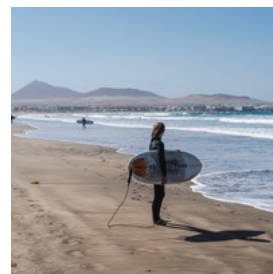

Experience the charm of Playa Blanca, a beach known for its pristine white sand and the authentic fishing village atmosphere that shares its name. This picturesque location is perfect for families and water sports enthusiasts alike, offering plenty of activities to enjoy.

The village of Playa Blanca provides a genuine glimpse into local life, and from here, you can easily take ferries to Fuerteventura and other islands in the archipelago, making it an ideal base for island-hopping adventures.

Costa Teguisse

Costa Teguisse is the part of the island most dedicated to active holidays. In fact, you will find hundreds of surfers at Las Cucharas beach, and scuba divers at Punta del Tope. Beginners needn't worry — there are plenty of schools and instructors at your disposal.

Beaches of La Graciosa Island

Discover the tranquility of La Graciosa Island, the largest island in the Chinijo Archipelago, situated just north of Lanzarote. This small volcanic island offers a variety of beaches, most of which are adorned with unique volcanic sand, providing a picturesque setting for relaxation and exploration. Accessible by a short 20-minute boat ride from Lanzarote, La Graciosa is a must-see destination for those seeking a peaceful retreat in the Canary Islands.

With its unpaved roads, secluded sandy beaches, isolated mountains, and bike paths, La Graciosa is the perfect escape from the hustle and bustle of daily life. Visitors have fallen in love with the island's stunning coastlines, wild nature, and breathtaking views. Immerse yourself in the island's beauty by biking or hiking around, and consider camping under the stars for a truly memorable experience.

SHOPPING

fast-stock / Shutterstock.com

Although Lanzarote is no longer a tax-free zone, you'll still find low prices on items like alcohol, perfume, Cuban cigars and cigarettes. For a unique island souvenir, consider purchasing local lacework, baskets or pottery crafted by the indigenous Guanche people.

Shops can be found in all the main resorts. In Arrecife, most shops are concentrated on Calle Leon y Castillo. Puerto del Carmen features the Biosfera Shopping Centre (home to clothing shops like Zara), while Playa Honda offers a variety of shops, cosy cafes, and a cinema in the Deiland Centre.

Teguise Market

Every Sunday morning, the quiet streets of Lanzarote's old capital, Teguise, come alive with the bustling energy of the island's most important market. As the heart of Canarian culture, the Teguise market offers an incredible variety of artisan crafts — from ceramics and basketry to leather goods. Alongside these traditional items, you'll also find an array of natural and local products, such as cheeses, wines, and cactus and aloe-based goods. The market has become a hub for artists to sell their eclectic works, making it a must-visit event for anyone exploring Lanzarote. Not only is it a great place to pick up unique souvenirs, but it's also where the locals go to do their weekly shopping, ensuring fresh and authentic flavours throughout.

César Manrique-Lanzarote Airport (ACE)

César Manrique-Lanzarote Airport, also known as Lanzarote or Arrecife Airport, serves the island of Lanzarote in the Canary Islands.

The local bus to Arrecife (line 22) stops just outside Arrivals and takes around 15 minutes, with services running from early morning till late at night.

Other lines connect the airport with Puerto del Carmen and Playa Blanca (lines 61, 161 and 162), as well as several towns and beaches across the island.

There are currently no Uber or other rideshare services available at the airport.

Passport & Visa

Citizens of European Union (EU) and European Economic Area (EEA) countries do not need a visa to enter Spain, only a valid ID. Many other countries, including the United Kingdom, United States, Canada, United Arab Emirates, Australia, and New Zealand, benefit from visa-free entry for short stays of up to 90 days within a 180-day period.

Visitors from visa-exempt countries must hold a valid passport and, starting in late 2025, will need to apply for an ETIAS (European Travel Information and Authorisation System) authorisation online before travelling.

For those requiring a visa, such as travellers from some Middle-East, African or Asian nations, a Schengen visa must be obtained prior to arrival. All travellers should ensure their passport is valid for at least three months beyond their intended stay.

Best Time to Visit Lanzarote

Lanzarote is a fantastic year-round destination, boasting mild winters and pleasantly warm summers, with temperatures rarely exceeding 30°C. To dodge the tourist crowds and enjoy a more tranquil experience, consider planning your visit during the shoulder months of April-May or September-October.

Public Transport

Travelling around Lanzarote is a breeze, as distances across the island aren't extensive, and local buses make getting about quite convenient. The majority of attractions are accessible via public transport, with all resorts connecting through Arrecife. For details on prices, routes, discounts and passes, head over to their website to make the most of your island adventure.

Internet: arrecifebus.com

Taxi

You'll find an abundance of taxis in the major tourist resorts, but keep in mind that public transport is efficient and often considerably more affordable.

It's highly recommended to use only official taxis, which are easily recognisable by their white and red colours. Taxi ranks are typically situated near the city's central station, ensuring you always have access to a ride.

Bear in mind that each part of the island has its own dedicated taxi company.

Post

Post offices are generally open only during the morning and early afternoon, and they are closed on Sunday. Stamps are also available from tobacconists and newsstands. The contact information below refers to the main post office in Arrecife, but you can get information about the other offices on the Spanish postal service's website.

Electricity

Spain's power grid operates at 230 volts with a frequency of 50 Hz, using Type F (Schuko plug) and Type C (Europlug) outlets. Both types accept plugs with two round prongs, common across continental Europe.
