THE CITY

Marek Masik/Shutterstock

The sprawling metropolis of Los Angeles is spread across four thousand square miles of desert between the mountains and the ocean. It consists of several mini-cities bound by a network of freeways. L.A. is divided into five main districts: Downtown, Hollywood, The Valley, Westside, and the Beaches, each a world in themselves.

The size of the place may be a source of confusion to a first-time visitor, but don't fret! It all soon falls into place. Tourists tend to concentrate in the western part of the city, where beach hotels and attractions are located. However, it is worth venturing Downtown for a bit more grit and less glitz, as well as for some great eating and drinking. Downtown is home to the magnificent Walt Disney Concert Hall, an experience in itself.

Los Angeles will always be associated with movies and movie stars. The huge Hollywood sign on the hill to Universal Studios, the glamour of Beverly Hills, and the unavoidable celebrity spotting in bars and restaurants. You cannot help but be lured into this surreal and magical world. Nevertheless, if you fail to look beyond this celluloid culture, you will be missing some of the most fabulous art collections and galleries in the world. The Getty Center, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, and the Norton Simon Museum all house spectacular permanent collections.

With most days of the year being sunny and warm, outdoor life is a large part of the Los Angeles lifestyle. Santa Monica, Venice, and Malibu beaches offer some great urban beach culture with roller skating on the promenades and shopping on the boulevards. Griffith Park is one of the largest city parks in the country and offers all manner of outdoor pursuits, including the LA Zoo.

With a population as diverse as its geography, Los Angeles has become a multicultural hub, which is reflected in the food, art, and streets themselves.

DO & SEE

Michael Bogner/Shutterstock

With so much to see and do, Los Angeles can be overwhelming to the first-time visitor, especially if time is tight. From world-famous attractions like the Hollywood Walk of Fame and Griffith Observatory to laid-back beaches and vibrant arts districts, the city offers something for every traveler.

Hollywood Walk of Fame & TCL Chinese Theatre

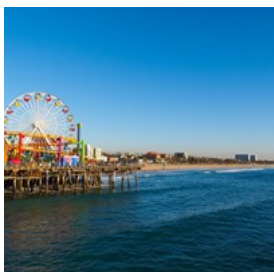

Stretching along Hollywood Boulevard, the Hollywood Walk of Fame is a tribute to entertainment legends, with over 2,700 brass stars embedded in the sidewalks honoring actors, musicians, directors, and more.

And a few steps away, the TCL Chinese Theatre is impossible to miss, with its dramatic, pagoda-style facade. The real magic, though, is in the forecourt, where generations of stars, from Marilyn Monroe to Dwayne “The Rock” Johnson, have left their handprints and signatures in cement.

Since its first movie premiere in 1927, the theater has been at the center of Hollywood’s biggest moments, and even today, it’s one of the best places to catch a film in true Hollywood style.

Santa Monica Pier

The Santa Monica Pier is where classic seaside charm meets California cool. Home to Pacific Park’s solar-powered Ferris wheel, it’s a spot where kids chase thrills on carnival rides while visitors of all ages take in sweeping ocean views.

Street performers, local vendors, and the occasional fisherman lined up along the railings give the pier its lively, unpolished character. Just steps away, the Heal the Bay Aquarium highlights local marine life, and history buffs can snap a photo at the Route 66 “End of the Trail” sign.

Warner Bros. Studio Tour Hollywood

Experience the magic of Hollywood and see where your favorite movies and TV shows were made on this Warner Bros. Studio guided tour. See the famous Central Perk café from Friends, visit The Big Bang Theory set, and ride around the picturesque town of Stars Hollow from Gilmore Girls. For a grand finale, become a part of your favorite DC Universe and Harry Potter movies on recreated sets.

Venice Beach

Street performers, tattoo artists, novelty vendors, Gen-X nomads, hippies, people-watchers, and colourful characters of all kinds come together to create this unique bazaar you need to explore at least once. And don't forget the three-mile beach or the streets that are lined with edgy boutiques. No wonder this is one of the most popular visitor attractions in Southern California.

Griffith Park

Spanning over 4,000 acres, Griffith Park is one of the largest urban parks in the United States. It has served as the backdrop for numerous films, including "Batman" and "Jurassic Park."

The park is home to the Griffith Observatory, the Los Angeles Zoo and Botanical Gardens, the Autry Museum of the American West, and the Travel Town Museum.

Visitors can explore 53 miles of scenic hiking trails and enjoy swimming, biking, and horseback riding. Griffith Park is also home to the Hollywood sign, which stands on Mt. Lee.

La Brea Tar Pits and Museum

The La Brea Tar Pits and Museum offer a rare, up-close look at Ice Age fossils still being uncovered in the heart of Los Angeles. Tens of thousands of years ago, tar trapped mammoths, saber-toothed cats, and dire wolves, preserving their remains for modern paleontologists to study. Today, visitors can explore these discoveries in the museum, watch scientists at work in the Fossil Lab, and even see active excavation sites like Project 23, where new fossils are unearthed daily.

Battleship USS Iowa Museum

Moored in San Pedro, the Battleship USS Iowa Museum lets you wander through one of the most magnificent and surprisingly personal pieces of U.S. naval history. Known as the "Battleship of Presidents," the Iowa once carried FDR across the Atlantic and later served through WWII, Korea, and the Cold War.

As you move through the ship's narrow corridors and out onto the decks, you get a real sense of what life was like for the crew: giant gun turrets towering overhead, cramped bunks stacked in rows, and glimpses of the command centers that once buzzed with activity. Veteran volunteers are often on hand to share stories or point out easy-to-miss details.

DINING

Marvin Minder/Shutterstock

Los Angeles is a true culinary melting pot, thanks to its diverse, multi-ethnic community. Whether you're craving authentic Mexican tacos, fresh sushi, or gourmet fusion fare, L.A. has it all. While the big-name restaurants often steal the spotlight, don't overlook the charming neighborhood spots that can offer some of the most memorable dining experiences.

Just a heads-up: Reservations are a must at many of these places, especially on weekends. And since most kitchens close by 10 p.m., it's always a good idea to head out early and make the most of your meal.

Nate'n Al's

If you're craving an old-school deli experience, Nate'n Al's is the place to go. A Beverly Hills institution since 1945, this bustling Jewish deli serves up all the classics: bagels with lox, towering pastrami sandwiches on house-made rye, and comforting matzo ball soup. The nostalgic atmosphere, complete with red leather booths and a steady hum of locals, makes it feel like a step back in time.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

anek.soowannaphoom/Shutterstock

When the sun dips below the horizon, Los Angeles comes alive with endless possibilities for nightlife. Whether you're in the mood to sip creative cocktails at an upscale rooftop bar, dance the night away in a trendy club, or catch an intimate live show, the city's after-dark scene has something for everyone.

West Hollywood offers high-energy spots, Downtown boasts a blend of sleek lounges and historic watering holes, and Venice provides a more laid-back, beachy vibe.

With its mix of glamorous hotspots and hidden gems, L.A. is the perfect place to experience a night out, no matter your mood or style.

Hollywood Improv

Hollywood Improv is a legendary comedy club where many of Hollywood's biggest names got their start, including Richard Pryor, Robin Williams, and Jerry Seinfeld. Today, it remains a go-to spot for top-tier stand-up, with surprise drop-ins from A-listers like Dave Chappelle, Kevin Hart, and Ali Wong. Alongside the heavyweights, the stage also gives up-and-coming comics a chance to shine.

Good Times at Davey Wayne's

Good Times at Davey Wayne's is one of L.A.'s most playful throwback bars; a full immersion into 1970s living-room nostalgia. You enter through a vintage refrigerator door, step into a space filled with retro furniture and vinyl-era vibes, and suddenly the whole place feels like a house party from decades ago. Out back, you'll find an Airstream trailer serving drinks and a small outdoor area that keeps the easygoing, backyard feel going late into the night.

SHOPPING

Gabriele Maltinti/Shutterstock

Los Angeles is a shopper's dream, no matter your style or budget. You can splurge on designer pieces along Rodeo Drive, dig through vintage gems at the Melrose Trading Post, or browse indie boutiques in Silver Lake. If you prefer a mix of big-name brands and open-air strolling, The Grove and Westfield Century City have you covered. Over in Venice, Abbot Kinney Boulevard blends fashion, art, and that signature laid-back California vibe. Whether you're after high fashion, thrifted treasures, or a quirky souvenir to take home, L.A. has it all, and then some.

Rose Bowl Flea Market

For a one-of-a-kind shopping experience, head to the world-famous Rose Bowl Flea Market, held monthly at the historic Rose Bowl Stadium. With over 2,500 vendors, this massive market is a treasure trove of vintage fashion, antique furniture, handmade crafts, and rare collectibles. Whether you're a bargain hunter, collector, or just browsing for unique finds, there's something for everyone.

Address: 1001 Rose Bowl Drive, Pasadena

Opening hours: Held on the second Sunday of every month from 9am to 4pm

Westside & Beverly Hills

The famous Rodeo Drive sits at the heart of the "Golden Triangle": Santa Monica Boulevard to the north, Wilshire Boulevard to the south, and Canon Drive to the east. Known for its luxury brands and designer labels, it's a familiar backdrop in countless movies. It's worth a stroll, even just for window shopping. Some sections of Rodeo Drive are slightly more approachable in price.

West Third Street (between Fairfax and Robertson Boulevards) offers a different vibe: a lively shopping street with independent boutiques, charming antique shops, and plenty of trendy cafés.

Address: Rodeo Drive, Los Angeles

Santa Monica & The Beaches

If L.A.'s ultra-trendy shopping districts feel a bit high-maintenance, the beachside neighborhoods offer a more relaxed alternative. Main Street, running between Santa Monica and Venice, blends surf-town character with stylish boutiques, mixing familiar brands with independent shops. It's also lined with easygoing cafés and restaurants, perfect for a shopping break.

Over in Venice, Abbot Kinney Boulevard is a must for vintage lovers, art galleries, and unique home finds. Meanwhile, Montana Avenue in Santa Monica (between 17th and 7th Streets) leans upscale but low-key, with specialty boutiques, home décor shops, and gourmet food spots.

Address: Santa Monica

Silver Lake & Los Feliz

Silver Lake and Los Feliz have long been creative hubs, home to artists, musicians, and an ever-growing crowd of trendsetters. Both neighborhoods are great for exploring independent boutiques, record stores, and vintage clothing shops, along with some of the city's best cafés and restaurants. Silver Lake leans more trendy and eclectic, while Los Feliz keeps a classic, bohemian charm, with historic landmarks like the Vista Theatre and a mix of old-school and modern retail spots.

The Original Farmers Market

A Los Angeles institution since 1934, The Original Farmers Market is a bustling, open-air marketplace packed with over 100 vendors, offering everything from fresh produce and gourmet groceries to global street food and specialty shops. Whether you're browsing unique spices, picking up farm-fresh ingredients, or just soaking in the lively atmosphere, this historic market is a must-visit for food lovers.

Downtown

Downtown L.A. is a vibrant mix of bargain shopping, historic markets, and cultural enclaves, making it a great area to explore beyond high-end malls. Santee Alley, in the heart of the Fashion District, is a must-visit for deep discounts on designer-inspired clothing, accessories, and footwear.

For a taste of L.A.'s Mexican heritage, head to Olvera Street, a lively pedestrian marketplace near Union Station, where stalls overflow with handmade crafts, leather goods, and authentic street food, all set to the backdrop of strolling musicians.

Another can't-miss stop is the Grand Central Market, a historic food hall open since 1917, where visitors can browse fresh produce, global ingredients, and some of the city's best eats, from tacos and ramen to gourmet coffee and pastries.

Hollywood Boulevard & Melrose Avenue

Hollywood Boulevard is one of Los Angeles' most iconic streets, drawing tourists with its mix of history and Hollywood kitsch. Along its sidewalks, you'll find souvenir shops, T-shirt stands, and poster stores, along with major attractions like the Hollywood Walk of Fame and the TCL Chinese Theatre.

For a different vibe, Melrose Avenue, particularly between Fairfax and La Brea, is one of L.A.'s most dynamic shopping streets. It's a hotspot for trendsetters, packed with eclectic boutiques, vintage shops, and edgy designer stores. The area is also home to street art-covered storefronts and stylish cafés, making it a prime spot for people-watching and soaking in L.A.'s effortlessly cool energy.

Address: Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles

The Grove

The Grove is a one-stop shopping destination that is like an adult Disneyland, complete with a trolley to transport shoppers from one end to the other. Here, you'll find everything from clothes, accessories, to beauty, and lifestyle. There are some great eateries, too, and the rooftop car park has a superb view of the city.

La Brea Avenue

Running along Wilshire Boulevard and Hollywood Boulevard, La Brea Avenue is a go-to shopping destination for those looking for a mix of vintage fashion, designer boutiques, home décor, and specialty stores. Known for its artsy vibe, this stretch offers everything from high-end streetwear and curated thrift shops to mid-century antiques and contemporary home goods.

Address: La Brea Avenue, Los Angeles

Citadel Outlets

Just 10 miles southeast of Downtown L.A., Citadel Outlets is a top spot for bargain hunters looking to score discounts on major brands. Housed in a striking Assyrian-style building, this open-air outlet mall offers deals on Coach, Michael Kors, Kate Spade, Nike, Levi's, and more, making it a favorite among international tourists.

While it doesn't have the high-end allure of Rodeo Drive or the indie charm of Melrose, Citadel's mix of luxury, mid-range, and budget-friendly brands, plus dining options, makes it a convenient stop for shoppers.

TOURIST INFORMATION

Miune/Shutterstock

Passport/Visa

Citizens of Schengen Area countries, along with Andorra, Australia, Brunei, Canada, Ireland, Japan, Monaco, New Zealand, San Marino, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom, can visit the United States for up to 90 days without needing a visa, provided they obtain an approved ESTA (Electronic System for Travel Authorization) before their trip. All other travelers must secure a visa before visiting the U.S.

In addition, international travelers must ensure their passport is valid for at least six months beyond their intended stay. For the most current information and any updates on entry requirements, it is advisable to consult the U.S. Department of State website or contact the nearest U.S. embassy or consulate before traveling.

Best Time To Visit

The best time to visit Los Angeles is, generally, spring (March to May) and fall (September to November). During these seasons, the weather is pleasant (mild temperatures ranging from 18-22°C) and the crowds are thinner than in the peak summer months. These months also offer a variety of events and festivals, such as the L.A. Film Festival in the fall and the L.A. County Fair in late summer.

Summer (June to August) brings warm weather and peak tourist season, with highs often reaching 27-34°C. This is when major events, such as the L.A. Pride Parade and Hollywood Bowl concerts take place, but be prepared for larger crowds and higher prices.

Winter (December to February) is less crowded and milder than in other U.S. cities, though it can be cooler with occasional rain. It's also a great time for holiday events like the L.A. Auto Show and the Tournament of Roses Parade.

Los Angeles International Airport (LAX)

Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) is located about 29 kilometres southwest of Downtown Los Angeles, usually a 20-30 minute drive depending on traffic.

Getting into the city is straightforward: ride-sharing services and taxis are available at designated pickup zones, and the LAX FlyAway® Bus offers reliable, non-stop service to Union Station as well as a few other key areas.

For those using public transport, free airport shuttles connect to the Metro C Line at Aviation/LAX Station, where travelers can transfer to other lines heading toward Downtown.

Hollywood Burbank Airport (BUR)

Hollywood Burbank Airport (BUR) is located approximately 24 kilometers north of downtown Los Angeles, typically a 20- to 30-minute drive depending on traffic conditions.

Ride-sharing services and taxis are easy to find outside the terminal, and there's a free shuttle connecting passengers to the nearby rail stations.

BUR is also the only major L.A.-area airport with a direct rail link to Downtown. Metrolink trains run from two stations: Burbank Airport-North on the Antelope Valley Line and Burbank Airport-South on the Ventura County Line, offering convenient access to Union Station and other regional destinations.

Long Beach Airport (LGB)

Long Beach Airport (LGB) is situated approximately 39 kilometers south of downtown Los Angeles, a typical 25- to 30-minute drive, depending on traffic conditions. Travelers can reach the city center via several transportation options, including ride-sharing services, taxis, and shuttle services. Public transportation is also available; the nearest Metro Rail station is the Wardlow Station on the A Line, which connects to downtown Los Angeles.

Public Transport

Los Angeles' public transit system is useful for reaching many key destinations, including Downtown L.A., Hollywood, Santa Monica, and Pasadena. However, due to the city's vast size and spread-out neighborhoods, relying solely on public transportation can be time-consuming, especially when traveling between less connected areas.

While Metro Rail and buses cover much of the city, some popular spots, such as Malibu, the Hollywood Hills, and certain beach communities, have limited or no direct transit options. For that reason, many visitors choose to supplement public transportation with ride-sharing services or rental cars to maximize flexibility and convenience.

For up-to-date schedules, fares, and route maps, check out the official website of the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (Metro).

Taxi

In Los Angeles, hailing a taxi on the street can be challenging, as cabs do not usually stop when hailed down. Instead, taxis are typically requested via phone, mobile apps, or found at designated taxi stands. Ride-sharing services such as Uber, Curb, RideYellow, and Lyft operate extensively throughout the city, offering a convenient alternative to traditional taxis.

Post

In Los Angeles, post office hours can vary by location, but many operate Monday through Friday from 9 am to 5 pm, with some offering Saturday hours, typically from 9 am to noon. Services provided include mailing and shipping, P.O. box rentals, and passport applications.

Telephone

Country code: +1 Los Angeles has several area codes: 213 covers downtown Los Angeles, while 323 surrounds it, including Hollywood and South L.A. The 310 area serves the Westside and coastal regions, with 424 as its overlay. The 818 and 747 codes cover the San Fernando Valley, while 626 serves the San Gabriel Valley. 562 includes Long Beach and nearby areas. In November 2024, the 738 area code was introduced as an overlay for 213 and 323.
