The narrow and often steep granite-paved streets of Cagliari's Castello District are a reminder of a bygone age when the town was dominated at first by Pisans, and later by the Aragonese. Built from white limestone, the walls and towers of the Old Town shimmer in the sun and are a magnificent sight, especially if you are lucky and approach the city from the sea, as the English novelist D.H. Lawrence did in 1921 when he described the Old Town as looking like a "Jerusalem without trees".

THE CITY

Sean Pavone/Shutterstock.com

Cagliari, or "castle" in Sardinian dialect, is the capital of the Italian island of Sardinia. Although most of the present town was built after the 12th century, Cagliari, like the rest of the island, was first settled by Phoenicians, who called the town Kàralis or "city of rock", and then by the Carthaginians. The Romans also left their mark by constructing a fine amphitheatre and some villas, but it was not until the 12th century that Cagliari saw a settled period again, first under the Pisans, followed by the Aragonese, and eventually by the Dukes of Savoy, who styled themselves as Kings of Sardinia.

Modern Cagliari reflects all of these influences. Around the most ancient part of the city, the Marina and Stampace districts are dotted with refined buildings from the XIX century. Via Roma, parallel to the boardwalk, houses a large array of shops, while the side streets Largo Carlo Felice and Via Regina Margherita offer the perfect frame for a walk to the castle. Castello District is the largest heritage left by the Pisans and the Aragonese. The road to reach it can be challenging (lifts are available), but its beauty and the amazing view that you will enjoy over Santa Gilla Lagoon and the lakes are worth the effort.

Cagliari has much to offer: from exceptional natural beauty unique to Sardinia to historic spots and testaments to a lively and spirited past, during which various cultures met and collided for centuries. Among all the experiences offered by the city and its environs, here are five not to be missed.

Bastion Saint Remy

The Bastion of Saint Remy was built in classical style, linking the three southern embankments of Santa Caterina, Zecca, and Sperone, to join the Castle district with the lower districts of Villanova and Marina. The terrace at the southern end of the Castello offers a magnificent view over the sea and marshes to the west.

Castello District

Castello District is the most ancient part of the city. Perched on a hill at almost 100 metres above sea level, the Pisans built it in the XIII century, fortified it and made it their centre of power. Since then and until the end of the Second World War, Castello has been the heart of the administration and the house of the Sardinian aristocracy. Its ramparts enclose the best-known attractions of Cagliari, but even a simple walk in this area will transport you to its fascinating past.

San Benedetto Market

If you are a morning person, take the chance to walk in the fresh air of the early day among the stalls of the San Benedetto Market to discover all the raw gems of Sardinian gastronomy, from both land and sea, with an entire floor dedicated solely to the catch of the day. This market, surrounded by shops and cafés, is also a good place to have breakfast or a short break while immersing yourself in the everyday life of the city.

The Pisan Towers

Torre dell'Elefante (the Elephant Tower) and Torre di San Pancrazio (St Pancras Tower) date back to the early 1300. They are unique stone constructions, with their internal side completely open toward the courtyard enclosed in the ramparts. The view from the top of these towers is a sight to behold.

Tuvixeddu Punic Necropolis

Tuvixeddu is a punic necropolis occupying an entire hill. Inside, it houses hundreds of graves carved into the rock over many centuries.

There is no other place like this in the world, and not even Carthage can boast a similar treasure. Nowadays it is possible to visit the sight only during particular occasions, such as Monumenti Aperty day (the "open monuments" day).

DO & SEE

Stefano Garau/Shutterstock.com

Under the arcades of Via Roma, in Largo Cargo Felice and Yenne Square, you will find the historical cafés of the city with their adorable outdoor tables. Here, espresso and cappuccino accompanied by small puff pastries are a real ceremony.

Below Saint Remy Bastion, two pedestrian streets host mostly fashionable shops, which make them perfect for a walk and for a shopping afternoon: Via Manno and Via Garibaldi.

Lastly, Castello is the ancient district perched on top of the hill, from which your gaze will reach the lagoon and lakes, taking your breath away. Here, the aristocracy and rulers of the city used to live throughout Cagliari's history. Indeed, even today, the coat of arms is visible on the edifice's front doors. In Castello, many places deserve a visit, so take your time to appreciate them all.

Mari Pintau Beach

remains outside of easy tourist access, so get

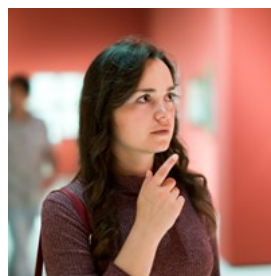

This striking beach is located 20 min by car from Cagliari, and the trip alone offers astounding views. This is one of the bays that ready to hike steep cliffs to reach the water. The beach is mostly rocky and there are no cafés or restaurants on the boardwalk, but the water is transparent and nature is as untouched as it gets.

DINING

Alessio Orru/Shutterstock.com

Despite the fact that Sardinia is surrounded by the sea, the best-known local dish is porceddu — roasted suckling pig. This does not mean that seafood is not part of the regional tradition, however. On the contrary, along the coast, you can enjoy daily fresh barbecued fish, such as striped bream, sea bass, and red and grey mullet.

Sardinians are very proud of their culinary tradition, so leave Italian and international food for later and appreciate the unique flavours of local cuisine, including (but not limited to) the delicious bread "cifraxu" and regional cheeses.

SHOPPING

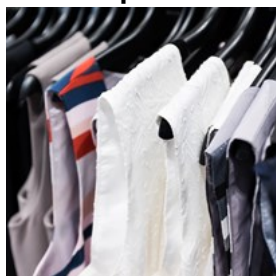

nenetus/Shutterstock.com

Cagliari has excellent shopping opportunities mainly concentrated in the Marina district, and especially in the arcade Via Roma, where you will find the main department store, La Rinascente. Other malls are Upim in Piazza Della Repubblica and Standa, a few kilometres from the city centre.

If you are shopping for souvenirs, or local handicrafts such as baskets and gold filigree jewellery, there are several shops catering to these needs in the port area. For regional specialities, try the indoor food market of San Benedetto. Sunday is a good day for markets, with the flea markets near St. Remy Bastion and in Piazza Trento. Furthermore, antiquities markets take place on the first Sunday of the month in Piazza del Carmine and in Piazza Carlo Alberto on the second and fourth Sundays of each month. But if bargains on used items don't appeal to you, try the large market at St Elia Stadium, also on Sundays, where new goods at bargain prices can be found.

Cagliari Elmas Airport (CAG)

Cagliari Elmas Airport is located 6 km northwest of the city. The easiest way to reach it is via train from Cagliari with the "Elmas Aeroporto" line.

Trains work from 5 am to 9 pm and run every 20 minutes. The trip takes around 7 minutes and the stop is only 5 minutes from the terminal. Tickets are available at the station and on the Trenitalia website.

It is also possible to get to the airport by bus. The bus leaves from Piazza Matteotti every hour, and the trip lasts around 15 minutes. Inside the airport, you will find two bus stations: one near the arrivals hall functioning from 8:40 am until 11:30 pm, and the other next to departures functioning from 5:20 am to 10:30 pm. Normally buses leave every 30 minutes and the tickets are available at the newsstand in the airport.

Best Time to Visit

The weather in Cagliari is generally favourable for tourism from April to October, but in July and August, temperatures can get oppressively hot. It is recommended to visit Cagliari in June or September for the most pleasant weather conditions and to avoid the largest crowds.

Public Transport

Public transport in Cagliari is run by CTM Company. Bus tickets can be bought at any newsstand and tobacconist before boarding the bus, and you will need to validate the ticket once on board. You can also purchase tickets through an app on your mobile device. Passes and cards for more than one trip are available at every CTM point or newsstand in the city.

Taxi

Taxis in Cagliari are regulated by the local government, and all licensed taxis are required to display a special emblem on their vehicles. Cabs can be hailed on the street or can be booked in advance by phone or through a taxi app. It is also possible to find taxi ranks at key locations throughout the city, such as train stations, airports, and major tourist attractions.

Taxis in Cagliari are generally metered, with rates that are determined by the distance travelled and the time of day. It is worth noting that taxis in Cagliari, like in many other cities, are generally more expensive at night and on weekends.
