Drop anchor in Karlskrona, the city founded in 1680, when Charles XI decided to build the country's new naval base here. 340 years later, the naval base remains, and the well-preserved architecture and city plan impressed Unesco, which gave Karlskrona World Heritage status in 1998. Wherever you go, you can see magnificent churches and squares, parade streets and fortifications that attract visitors from all over the world. All this on several islands in an archipelago that Unesco has designated as one of seven biosphere reserves in Sweden.

DO & SEE

Oliver Lindkvist/Marinmuseum

There is no end of things worth doing and seeing in Karlskrona. Stroll the streets and experience the town's modern-day pulse blended with its historical spirit, a fantastic combination of past and present. The flagship of Karlskrona's attractions is The Naval Museum.

Stortorget

Stortorget, the largest square in Karlskrona, stands proudly at the heart of Trossö island, forming the central hub of the city. This grand square, perched on the island's highest point, is surrounded by monumental buildings that tell tales of the city's rich history. The centrepiece is the statue of Karl XI, overseeing the bustling paved expanse. Two magnificent churches, Fredrikskyrkan (The Frederick Church) and Trefaldighetskyrkan (The Holy Trinity Church), also known as the German Church, add to the square's allure. Stortorget captivates visitors with its architectural splendour, and the surrounding pedestrian streets feature an array of restaurants and cafés.

Naval Museum

The Naval Museum provides a captivating journey into the intriguing realm of the Swedish Navy. Featuring authentic battleships, 18th-century figureheads, and unique models, the exhibits offer a comprehensive look at Sweden's naval history. A highlight is the underwater tunnel housing a genuine wreck.

Going beyond conventional displays, the museum offers interactive experiences, allowing visitors to fully immerse themselves in the naval world. Step aboard historic vessels, listen to captivating sea tales through audiovisual presentations and engage your senses for an enriching exploration of maritime heritage.

Karlskrona Archipelago — 1,650 Islands, Islets & Rocks

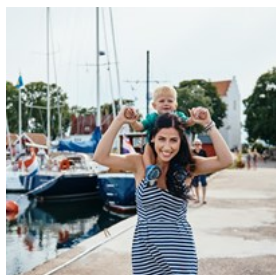

Karlskrona archipelago is liberating and probably one of the most beautiful places there is. The archipelago of Karlskrona is the southernmost of Sweden's archipelagos. The whole city is built upon 33 islands. Without the protective ring of large and small islands surrounding the city, King Karl XI, would probably not have chosen Trossö for his new naval base. There are islands, that have from one to 1,500 inhabitants, islands with and without connection to the mainland.

Look for your very own favourite spot — and enjoy — because there are plenty of them!

Far out in the eastern archipelago, there are plenty of exciting islands like Inlängen, Utlängen, Stenshamn, Ungskär, and Hästholmen, which offer a charming setting. The character of the islands here differs a lot from the green inner archipelago. Far out to the southeast, lies the island Utklippan. Enjoy the unique environment and look for the seal colony, the seals really enjoy their life here.

Kristianopel

Situated approximately 40 km north of Karlskrona, Kristianopel is a charming village that breathes life into a captivating history.

Echoes of bygone eras of strife and conflict resonate through its streets, bearing witness to a time when the border between Denmark and Sweden converged in this very region. The sprawling city wall, stretching for kilometres with formidable bastions, not only served as a protective barrier for inhabitants but stands today as a tangible reminder of the once heavily fortified border.

Founded in the early 1600s by Danish King Christian IV, Kristianopel holds the prestigious title of Scandinavia's first Renaissance city. In this historic village, visitors can explore small shops, inviting restaurants, and a popular café, immersing themselves in its vibrant ambience. For a breathtaking panoramic view, you can walk around parts of the mighty old city wall, offering a unique perspective that captures Kristianopel's timeless allure.

Brändaholm

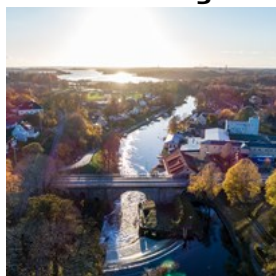

Did you know that the most Swedish of all Swedish motifs, and perhaps the most widely distributed, is found in Karlskrona — on tiny Brändaholm? 43 red cottages with white corners, waving flags, and a bright blue sea. And the motif continues to be spread across the globe as a representation of genuine Swedishness. Come and take a look at the real thing!

Nature & Hiking

Whether you're seeking tranquil moments surrounded by nature's wonders or gearing up for an active adventure like running, cycling, or paddling, Karlskrona offers a plethora of choices. With 25 captivating nature reserves, each showcasing diverse habitats—ranging from archipelago landscapes to mixed forests—Karlskrona's surroundings are a nature lover's dream. Scenic gems like Knösö, Sturkö, Torhamn's udde, and Södra Flymen invite exploration.

Embark on a journey through the heart of nature with ARK56, an extensive network of trails weaving through the enchanting Blekinge archipelago. Whether on foot, kayak, bike, or boat, ARK56 promises a fusion of nature and culture. The network features 13 hubs strategically placed along the trails, such as Hasslö (Garpahamnen), Aspö (Lökanabben), Sturkö (Bredavik), and more, providing not just trails but a holistic experience with amenities, accommodation, and unforgettable moments.

Björkholmen

A stroll around Björkholmen still gives you an insight into how it was in the 18th century. The Björkholmen part of the town can be seen as the other side of the tracks in relation to the parade buildings of Trossö. This is where the first shipyard workers and tradesmen lived in small, low cottages, that sometimes rested directly on the flat rock. The streets on Björkholmen are named after different types of ships and admirals. Enjoy the view over Saltsösund and passing boats.

Kungsholm Fort

This fort has defended the entrance to Karlskrona for more than 300 years. Kungsholms Fort is still operational within the Swedish defences. The remarkable round harbour has become somewhat of a symbol for Karlskrona's status as a World Heritage site. Exotic plants from all corners of the globe flourish under the protection of the fort's walls. They have been brought here over many years on vessels returning from distant voyages. A museum on the island depicts the fort's history. There are regular guided tours to Kungsholms Fort during the summer, visits can also be arranged for groups and individuals at other times.

Gamla Örlogsvarvet

Sweden's proudest sailing fleet was created at the Gamla Örlogsvarvet. The old shipyard area forms part of the Karlskrona World Heritage Site, which is on the UNESCO World Heritage List.

Here you will find, among relatively modern buildings, a variety of buildings and technology covering more than 300 years of shipbuilding. The most eye-catching buildings on Lindholmen are the Wasaskjulet, Polhemsdockan, and Repslagarbanan—Sweden's longest wooden building dating from 1692.

There is also a tour that takes you to Lindholmen by sea. This shows you Karlskrona from the seaside and takes you out to the former naval yard. You can only visit Lindholmen with a guided tour. During the summer there are regular tours, contact the tourist office to arrange tours at other times.

Drottningsskär Citadel

Drottningsskär Citadel stands as a testament to Sweden's historical might, with construction predominantly occurring in the late 17th century.

Revered as one of the nation's premier defence structures, this fortress remains remarkably preserved, offering a glimpse into Sweden's past as a formidable power.

Crafted from enduring granite, the large castle encompasses a gun deck, powder magazine, and living quarters, all organised around four bastions named after queens Maria, Christina, Hedvig, and Ulrica.

Although it hasn't played an active role in Swedish defence since 1895, Drottningsskär Citadel remains a compelling destination. Accessible year-round via the car ferry to Aspö, visitors can explore this historical gem and immerse themselves in Sweden's military legacy.

SHOPPING

Andreas Blomlöf/Visit Karlskrona

In the centre of Karlskrona — at the heart of the archipelago — you'll find a few shopping arcades, designer shops, delicatessens, art galleries, and market stalls. Many shops are found along and around the two pedestrian streets of Ronnebygatan and Borgmästaregatan. Don't forget to visit the side streets, where you'll come across several unique shops, with “that little extra”.

There are over 200 shops and the assortment is varied, with everything from well-known brands and chains to unique, local shops offering a hand-picked selection of goods. Many restaurants and cafés are clustered around Stortorget and the pedestrian streets, but naturally, there are also waterside eateries where you can enjoy your meal or a refreshing drink with an ocean backdrop.

Wachtmeister Galleria
