The coast of dreams, ravaged by the Atlantic Ocean and lined by spectacular sandy beaches, where you will find towering cliffs sheltering small rock pools. The sea is teeming with life, and the crystal-clear water is perfectly alluring, whether you are dreaming of a relaxing swim or an adrenaline-pumped afternoon of extreme sports. If you shy away from the surf, you can admire the spectacular views from above as you stroll along the tops of the cliffs or wander back into town and into one of the many delightful gardens.

THE CITY

Newquay is unquestionably Britain's surfing capital with national and international competitions attracting athletes and spectators throughout the year. But it is also a popular, lively resort area with miles of fine beaches, calm coves and cliff-top walks where you can have a go at spotting Cornish dolphin.

There is something here for everyone, irrespective of the weather. Play pitch and putt near Marcus Hill or head out to the Trenance Gardens. From the harbour you can take short cruises and buy freshly-caught shellfish or make the most of the pleasure area and watch all the activity. Newquay has developed its own unique culture and offers an exciting holiday, with its fashionable bars, clubs, cafés and restaurants as well as first-class indoor attractions such as the Aquarium, Cornwall Pearl, National Maritime Museum, or the Eden Project.

From safe sandy beaches ideal for children to the hectic thrills of the roaring breakers, you are sure to find the perfect spot for yourself on one of Newquay's fourteen beaches. And with walking, cycling, horseback riding, bowling, tennis, fishing, kite surfing, wakeboarding, diving, power kiting or abseiling, plus a host of indoor and outdoor attractions all in the surrounding area, it really is impossible to be bored here.

BEACH LIFE

Christine Dodd/Shutterstock.com

With 11 beaches in the vicinity of Newquay's town centre there is a slice of shore for everyone, but you should always remember to bathe between the red and yellow flags and be aware of the tide. The sea at Newquay is crystal clear, but the ocean tides are strong, particularly near headlands and rocks. Great care should be exercised at ebb tide periods, there are tide clocks on the principal beaches and Lifeguards will always give advice.

All the beaches have good facilities including cafés, but Great Western beach, reached by a steep slope leading off Cliff Road, is the best family beach for small children.

Fistral Beach

To surf on Newquay's most famous beach, head west past the harbour and onto Headland Road. Fistral is home to Newquay's many national and international surfing championships.

Newquay Cornwall Airport (NQY)

Newquay Cornwall Airport is located less than 5 miles east of Newquay town centre and it is quick and easy to get there by bus or by road. Western Greyhound bus 556 operates between the airport and Newquay and Padstow.

Travel Cornwall also has buses and taxis running regularly from the airport into Newquay Bus Station.

It is advisable to book a taxi in advance.

You can also hire a car with Hertz, Avis or Europcar.

Public transport

Newquay is small and it is quick and easy to get around on foot. Travel Cornwall and Western Greyhound run regular bus services around town as well as to other destinations in Cornwall. Western Greyhound offers different types of tickets and you buy tickets on the bus.

In peak season traffic builds up and parking is difficult, so it is best you leave your car parked and get around town on foot or by bus. If you are going further afield by train you can buy a 'PlusBus' rail ticket and this can then be used on Greyhound buses within the Newquay area on your day of travel.
