Still relatively unurbanized, Sedona immerses as one of America's natural masterpieces. Magnificent red rocks extend upwards as natural skyscrapers, while clear waters flow around them. Native Americans thrived in the area before the arrival of Europeans, and now both national and international visitors come to see the astonishing landscapes of the city. Sedona is commonly known for being a spiritual retreat destination.

Plenty of Americans have either made Sedona their permanent residence, or a frequent stop on their vacation itineraries.
